Good friends, Missy Eng, Amy Hammaker, and Kate Gordon take time out to show off their beauty regime. The girls participated in Young Life's Rockbridge retreat, a weekend surrounded by friends and fellowship.

During an excursion to Norfolk's Waterside, junior Trey Heighton clowns around on the kiddie rides. Trey was always up for a few laughs when spending time with his friends.

Enjoying the evening lights at Disney World Village, Brittany Gleason and April Bell spend quality time as best friends. The girls were visiting Florida while their dance company participated in Disney's Magic Music Days Festival.

"If you're lost you can look and you will find me
Time after time
If you fall I will catch you, I'll be waiting
Time after time
Caught up in circles, confusion is nothing new flash back warm night, almost left behind
Suticase of memories...
If you're lost you can look and you will find me
Time after time
If you fall, I will catch you,. I'll be waiting
Time after time."

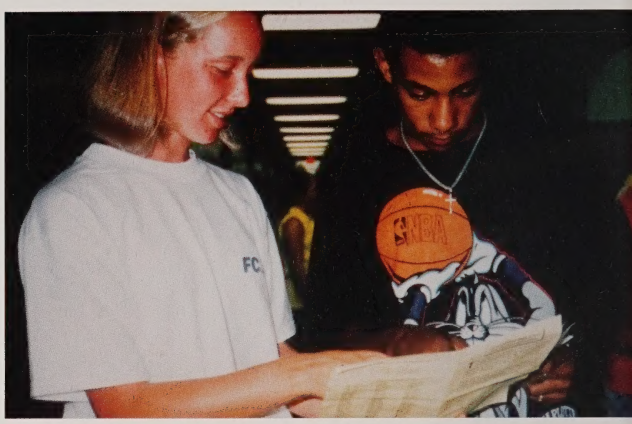
Time After Time
Cyndi Lauper

Throughout the year, Patriots pushed themselves to the limit by studying, perfecting their moves on the field, and toiling in school spirited activities. Freshmen were challenged with a new bell schedule, sophomores anticipated Driver's Education, juniors looked forward to class rings, and seniors had senioritis. But no matter what the event, students joined together to make the best of the situation, "time after time."

"The best part about being a senior is that we have more privileges than the other classes, and I know more abut the school."

Lameshia Bridgers, Senior.

At freshmen orientation, Kristen Eitel helps newcomer Ray Jenkins to find his classes. Adjusting to a larger school was the hardest part of beginning ninth grade.



Placing himself in eternal punishment, Adam Bowling enjoys visiting and touring England. Adam spent summer vacation traveling with the exchange group "People to People," in places like Warwick Castle.

At the Green Run versus First Colonial football game, seniors gather in a cheering section all of their own. Sports events gave the students a break from the monotony of the school week and a chance to socialize and relax with friends.

An avid horse rider since age ten, Amanda Frittelli takes a practice jump with her horse Twinx. Amanda, a senior, has won many first place awards in her equestrian career.

Time of Your Life

"Another turning point;
A fork stuck in the road.
Time grabs you by the wrist;
Directs you where to go.
So make the best of this test
And don't ask why.
It's not a question
But a lesson learned in time.
It's something unpredictable
But in the end it's right.
I hope you had the time of your life."
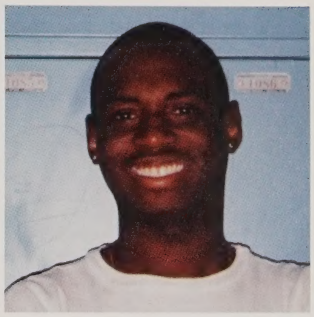
Time of Your Life
Green Day

Although a student's life was filled with long hours and hard work, school activities and weekends brought tons of fun and entertainment. Many students were involved in after school clubs, sports, and fine arts which reaped worthwhile benefits. Juggling up to seven classes a day and homework every night got a little rough, but students still had the "time of their lives."



"My favorite part of First Colonial is all the friendly people."
Darnell Roland,
Sophomore

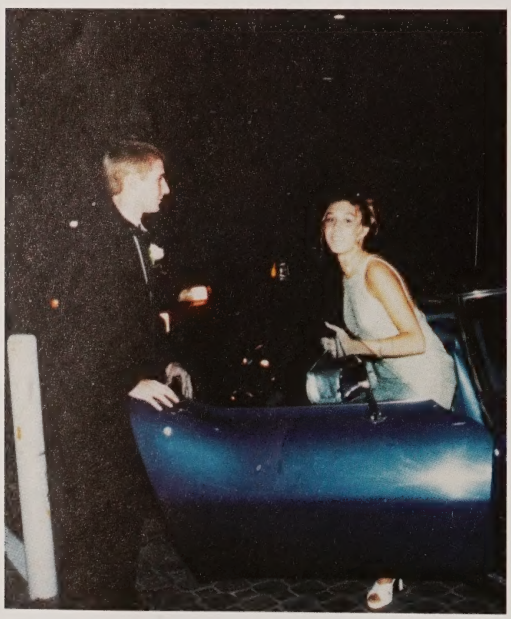
Imperial Twilight

Senior Prom & Graduation

Imperial Twilight was the image first received stepping through the doors in the Sheraton Hotel at the oceanfront . Some seniors travelled by limousine, some by the TRT trolley, while others drove their own cars to the most memorable night of the year. Enjoying good music and good company, the seniors danced the night away and enjoyed consuming the wide assortment of food and delicious punch. A Senior Class sponsor and a chaperone of the prom, Ms. Land stated, "All of our hard work and organizing was well worth it, for this is a night to remember." Recalling the events of the night, Laurie Phillips said, "Yeah the music was fun, and the food was delicious. I really enjoyed myself."

Graduation was also an evening to remember. Parents viewed their children formally facing the end of high school, and their hearts filled with pride and hope for a bright future. Cheering from the onlooking crowd echoed throughout the room as each student proceeded up the stairs to accept his diploma. Friends, family, relatives, and neighbors flocked to the Pavilion to watch their favorite graduate assemble for the last time as the class of 1998. Even though the years of high school came to an end, it was really the beginning of every young graduate's life.

Getting down to the continuous beats of the disk jockey, Julia Rodriguez and Rezwan Kabir enjoy themselves as they dance. Senior Prom gave couples a chance to dance one last time and enjoy being with friends.

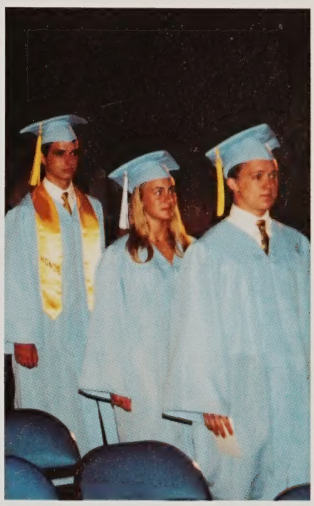


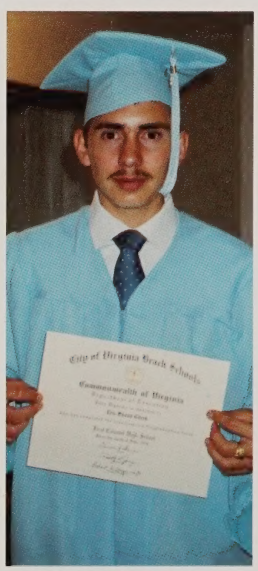
Rolling up in style, David Hills courteously escorts Tammy Jaeckle. Many young men transported their dates in style by using their own car or borrowing from family or friends.

Posing for a friends photo before leaving for prom, seniors gather at Katherine Benson's house. Parents enjoyed taking pictures, as they got to see the end results of prom preparation.

Nervously awaiting their names, Jeff Edwards, Randy Eppert, Any Estill, and Marcus Eure listen to the speaker. The officers of the Senior Class and the National Honor Society each also had a chance to address the graduates.

Proceeding down the walkway, Daniel Kupke, Ellen Kutchak, and Chad Lambert prepare for their final senior hours. The ceremony was well worth the anticipation.





"After graduation and gradfest, everyone was really proud, but it was still sad seeing the end of these great years."

Eric Cheek,
Graduate

Submitting a speech to the entire senior class, Valedictorian Katie Miller, addresses her thoughts for the graduating students. After her speech, Katie received much applause from her fellow classmates.

Having the "time of their lives," juniors dance the night away under the neon lights. Students enjoyed the dj's musical selections until midnight.

Definitely a style match, Keisha Smith and her date, Cameron, sport a matching black and white dress and tux. Coordinating outfits was a prominent theme at the dance.

"Overall, Ring Dance was the Bomb! I loved the location and its atmosphere! Dancing with Tim Lett was awesome!"
Jennifer Drinko,
Senior

Turning his ring, Matt Emborski's date, Maggie Connell, is the first to participate in this tradition. Required to get their rings rotated ninety-nine times the juniors got started with this task early on in the evening.

The parking lot at Planet Beach on Little Creek Amphibious Base was filled with limos, TRT trollies, and cars on the evening of April 4, 1998. Juniors gathered together for a night of fun, dancing, eating, and laughter. The dance club atmosphere provided an exciting place to dance and socialize. As the juniors had personally selected their rings during the winter, the receiving and turning class rings was a highlight of the night, as well as the formal pictures taken by Lifetouch Studio. At the end of the night, each attendant was presented with a beach ball as a keepsake.

Many students began preparation for the dance as early as February, as much went into making the night unforgettable. The girls spent hours selecting the perfect dress, while guys were dragged to the mall to choose a tuxedo. It was the responsibility of the gentlemen to purchase the tickets, make dinner reservations, and select a corsage for their date. As April fourth came complete with wind and rain, the girls' day was hectically spent dodging raindrops between hair and nail appointments.

Co-chairs Susanna Aikin, Megan Christenson, Jaimee Sharp, and their committee, put many long hours of hard work into organizing and planning the event. Between keeping the dance floor hot, socializing with friends, and taking pictures, the Class of 1999 made their Ring Dance a truly unforgettable evening.

Riding in style, Lameisha Bridgers, Patricia Holmes, and Kendra Miles enjoy the luxury of their limousine. Students took advantage of a plethora of transportation options for Ring Dance, the more popular including limousines and TRT trolleys.

As they step off the dance floor, Emily Hargis and Dan Sawyer hug as a friend takes their picture. Students enjoyed the fun, food, and music throughout the night.

In the Heat
Summer Fun and Jobs

Anticipation grew as students awaited their final exams and the last bell of the school year. Many experienced the thrill of freedom with their friends, and others enjoyed meeting new people through various summer jobs. Ice cream shops were filled with hard-working Patriots. Life guarding was also a great job to pursue, as Emily Goodman put it, "Working at Little Neck Swim and Racquet Club, I got to meet a lot of great people and work on my tan at the same time!"

Even with the initial dread of spending days in the car with the family, students cherished the memories of family vacation. Other students pursued summer sports such as rock climbing, surfing, and scuba diving. As a certified diver, Luke Guillow commented, "I have gone to Key West, Florida, New Hampshire, and off the Virginia coast diving the waters for exploration. I received my diving certification five years ago and have enjoyed it more every year." Local beach bums took advantage of the sun's rays or the decent waves from the hurricanes. Regardless if students labored tediously, traveled, or just hung out, the memories of friends and warm weather carried them throughout the school year.

In England, Susanna Aikin and Jenny Thomas check their watches against Big Ben. The girls spent three weeks traveling through London and Scotland visiting Europe.

Hooked on deep sea diving, Luke Guillow readies himself to take the plunge. Even though this was a year-round activity for Luke, he mostly enjoyed the warmer waters in the summer.

The Farm Fresh grocery store is another popular spot where students had their first job as a cashier or bagger. Erin Rondeau learned valuable skills while earning extra spending money.

Scooping strawberry ice cream for a customer, Dan Hartsmanstorfer enjoys his summer job. Dan used his paycheck to help pay for car insurance, buy gas for his car, and acquire spending money for weekend fun.

In the countryside of Valentigney, France, Melanie Ortt holds onto a road sign. Melanie spent four weeks with a host family learning their customs and enjoying her travels throughout France.

Teaming up while building their friendship, Sam Romano, Nick Romano, and Sean Reville spend the summer serving themselves ice cream and spending time together. These rising sophomores mostly relaxed during the two months before school.

"Brandy and I had a great time at the beach in Hatteras, North Carolina this summer. We spent time on the beach, went shopping, and just hung out."

Christie Warnick, Senior

Putting the finishing touches on their sand sculpture, Merrye-Marie Meeks, Taren Gregory, Diana Jabbour, and Lindsey Holtz take pride in their creation. The First Colonial Art Honor Society sponsored the event, in which many students participated.

While being presented at the Cavalier Hotel's Grand Ball, Neptune Princess Lauren Polino stands with her triton. Lauren was selected to represent First Colonial during the festivities by serving on the court of King Neptune.

"The Varsity Cheerleaders did very well in the competition against the other schools. Afterwards we went on the boardwalk to see the art show and sand castles."
Devan Mac Connell, Sophomore

As the marching band moves down Atlantic Avenue, they fill the streets with the sounds of The Overture to Henry V. The band's theme for the year was songs from the British Isles.

Local Celebration

Neptune Festival

During late September in Virginia Beach, it was time for the locals to celebrate the closing of another fruitful tourist season with the annual Neptune Festival. The festival celebrated its twenty-fifth anniversary with an array of festivities that entertained and dazzled the local crowd.

This special anniversary celebration included various concerts, events, and competitions for all Virginia Beach citizens. The boardwalk was consumed by stands displaying art, enticing food vendors, and the sound of bands playing. The party was kicked off with a fireworks display on Friday evening, and an early morning eight kilometer marathon the following morning. The sand sculpting, cheerleading, and surfing competitions took place at the south end of the beach, while the twenty-fourth street stage housed the annual Wine Festival and various art displays. Saturday night, the sky over the ocean was illuminated by the grand fireworks production at the pier. For the finale of the week long celebration, the Neptune Parade was lined up at Fourth Street and proceeded down Atlantic Avenue. On that beautifully warm Sunday afternoon the Neptune Court's float with a variety of floats from local organizations and numerous high school bands participated in the farewell event for the season which marked festival's twenty-five years of success.

Displaying their artwork along the boardwalk, Jessica Miller and Cantley Carter readjust their paintings. Many Patriots bought artwork, sold artwork, and enjoyed the craft show along the boardwalk throughout the weekend.

Executing a high scoring stunt, the cheerleaders perform at the N.C.A. champi onships held at 12th street. The girls finished third place in the varsity level competition.

Adding a finishing design to their sea sculpture, Matt Emborski, Amanda Webb, and Monica Lucente enjoy the competition of the sand castle contest. Many Patriots watched and cheered these students as they competed throughout the weekend.

Lean on Me
Friendship Forever

Sure, grades were important; everyone wanted a high GPA, good test scores, and honor roll. But what high school was truly about, what really counted in the long run, were friends.

"Friends are what we will remember when we look back on our high school years, not that math test that we aced." Vicki Parsons summed it up perfectly. In good times or in bad, carefree times or stressful times, friends were there to depend on and provide support. It was always a relief to know that with good friends a student could simply relax and be themself with their friends.

Even with busy schedules, friends always found the time to hang out with each other. They could be seen at Young Life, the mall, the beach, and First Colony Coffeehouse. No matter what friends were doing, if they were together, they were having fun.

Friends were especially important when relationships fell apart. Good friends provided a strong shoulder to cry on and gave loving support. These, along with many others, were the timely memories that were recounted in the future.

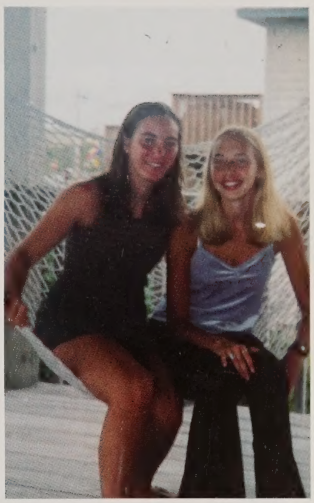
In the dining hall at Triple "R" Ranch Camp, Paradee Wheeler and Vicki Parsons take a break from their busy schedule. Supervising the children was a large responsibility, but an enjoyable and educational experience.

With total concentration, these boys compete against each other in "James Bond 007." When friends couldn't think of anything to do, they could always count on Nintendo 64.

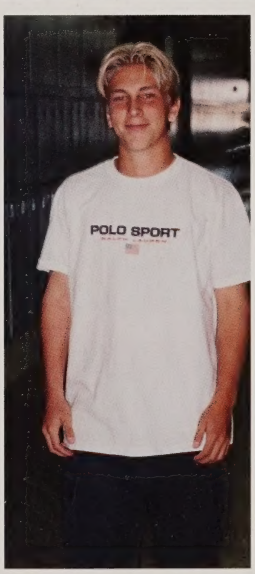
At one of the first football games of the season, these good friends have a blast during halftime. Students looked forward to Friday night games and the fun and excitement of "free time".

Demonstrating school spirit in their own special way, Tyrell Lyons, Sean Love, Jerimiah Blake, and Levander Hughes dance in the stands. The boys cheered loudly against the Kempsville Indians at the football game.

Hanging out together in Duck, North Carolina, Ashley Markovitch and Ashley Thow spend time together. The two girls enjoyed the care-free time they spent during their summer retreat.



Gathering in between classes, Christina Olson, Nina Jordan, Courtney Foster, and Tonya Driggers stop for a cookie break. The girls met on Fridays to discuss their plans for the weekend.



"Going to the beach, boating, surfing, and bodyboarding are some of my favorite things to do with my friends."

Patriot Pride

Spirit Week

Going back to the 60's and 70's, Nat Land gets on his Jimi Hendrix groove while Bubba Fleming strikes his best disco pose. These two were among the many who took a trip back in time for Decade Day.

Spirit week really showed FC's true Patriots, and those students who participated had lots of fun. It all started off on Monday. Pajama day filled the halls with laid back students decked out in their finest bedtime attire. The sleepyheads had a hard time staying on task and awake. College sweatshirt day was held on Tuesday. This really displayed how many students are looking forward to getting out of high school and into the real world. It was also apparent that many students have high aspirations for themselves with all the Georgetown and Harvard logos. Decade day celebrated on Wednesday was a blast from the past. "I love dressing up!" Liz Drew stated as she walked by in her flapper dress. Ranging from the roaring twenties to the yuppie eighties, everyone recognized the different styles of the times. Whether it was flashdancers or punkrockers we were sure to be reminded of days long gone. Thursday was Halloween costume day. Walking down the halls was quite a scary task, with all the ghouls and cross-dressers roaming around. Friday ended the week with real Patriot pride. The theme was to show the blue and gold Patriot colors off proudly with class shirts, face paint, and hair ribbons. The whole school enthusiastically participated on this day. Friday was also the first pep rally of the year, and it really boosted school pride with the spirit games and introduction of the Varsity Football players. It was a blast and everyone was very excited about Homecoming.

With a cry for freedom, Todd Robinson, Chris Paddock, and Ryan Ramstead dress as extras from "Braveheart." Costume day really gave students a chance to show their creative side.

Displaying their favorite college apparel, Palmer Roberts, Mr. MacDonald, Christy Nesselrode, Mary Sue Kuchta, Katie Morse, Blair Townsend, and Gerard Golden show their college aspirations. The students that participated showed that their dreams of future education will someday become a reality.

Once Upon A Dream
Homecoming

Once Upon A Dream", the theme for Homecoming, was the inspiration for the class and club floats The Freshmen's "Sweet Dream" float appeared very realistic, while the Sophomores' "School Spirits" had a frighteningly different effect. "A Fairy Tale Fantasy" consisting of several bedtime stories from "Jack and the Beanstalk" to "Rapunzel" was the contribution from the Juniors. But the Senior Class float captured the true spirit of rivalry with "Nightmare on Mill Dam Road".

From the initial kickoff to the very end, the game remained close with both teams alternately scoring. Even though the Patriots gave their best, the Dolphins were victorious. When asked about the game, senior team member Jeremy Perry commented, "We were all psyched for the game, but it didn't turn out like we'd hoped."

Balloons encompassed the gym entry door while silver foil streamers hung between the large and small gyms, and a spotlight was aimed into the gym to illuminate the seven hundred and sixty-three dancers. Students' shoes and coats were assembled along the hallway allowing them to dance in their "sock" feet. Senior, Jackie Burnett commented, "This homecoming was the most fun I've ever had. I'm so glad the band was able to get back from competition."

In the gym foyer, Nicole Blackshire, Arnetha Pollard, and Shaunta Gibbs take a break from dancing. These girls danced the night away with rest of the sutdent body at the Homecoming dance.

Representatives from each class of the Homecoming Court pose for a final photo after the crowning. The ladies, Mary Guinta, Lauren Mastic, Kathy Cuce, Krissy Cuce, Sarah Buck, Lauren Polino, Liz Drew, Jenny Steele, Amy Hammaker, Alison Mercker, and Sara Polino, held white rose buds while the gentlemen, Tim Brooks, Alex Naden, Jon Floyd, Tim Lett, Ross Flckenscher, Gerard Golden, and Mike Maugeri, knelt in front.

Smiling happily, Homecoming King and Queen, Tim Lett and Liz Drew displayed their excitement. Tim and Liz were proud to have been selected as representatives of the school and student body.

With shouts and screams, the seniors show their spirit during the Homecoming parade. The overflowing trolley circled the football field and carried the exuberant seniors through another tradition.

Running through the spirit banner, the football team gets the crowd excited. The night air was crisp and cool, and they were ready to advance against the Ocean Lakes Dolphins.

Busily adding some last minute touches, Stephanie Granger, Ashley Moy, Tiffany Jones, Holly Goodman, and Erin Dawson strive to make their float perfect. The Freshmen worked many long hours at Shannon Wynne's house to make their "Sweet Dreams" come true.

"Throughout the season, we had a few disappointments but we managed to come together to play as one."
Colin Mitchell

After working at freshman orientation, the senior helpers head to the local hang-out for pizza. These seniors enjoyed the good time they had together at "Y-NOT" pizza.

Checking out artwork at the Neptune Festival, Linday Smith and Ashley Thow spend time absorbing some beautiful weather. Booths of art were assembled all along the boardwalk to display the best work of local artisans.

Freshmen Tara Benjamin, Sioban Hardcastle, Michael Lidet, Sam Silverman, and Heather Guin hang-out together at orientation. Most freshmen were anxious to begin their high school years.

The Eiffel Tower makes a dazzling backdrop for senior visitor, Jenni Stilwell. Jenni took many spectacular pictures while touring Paris, France.

How Bizarre

Whether it was meeting in the school parking lot, sight-seeing over summer vacation, studying in the hallways, or cheering at the football games, the bright faces of Patriots portrayed friends having fun just about anywhere. Patriot pride in academics, sports, activities, and mainly in relationships was visible "Everytime I Look Around."

Trends

scussing the various features of their shoulder bags, Bubba Flemming, Alise Murden, abd Brooke Mathias ake comparisons. They enjoy the new stylish bags and ease of carrying.

Fashion trends were ever-changing events for high school students. Each student had their own definition of style based on their particular personality and lifestyle. "The school's halls almost always seem like a fashion show," said Allison Barrett, "What's trendy one day may be out of style the next." The over-the-shoulder bookbag was a popular item carried by many students that permitted them to distribute the weight across their body rather than pull on the back. As the nineties drew to an end, so did the popularity of the backpacks which had only proven to be a fashion trend that had seen its last days.

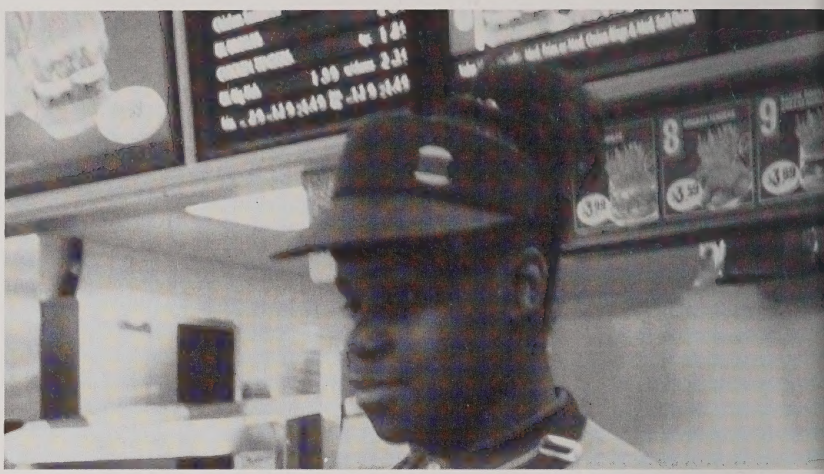
JOBS

For many upperclassmen, the beginning of the school year wasn't an end to their summer jobs, but a beginning of prioritizing and organizing duties and time. Because time was such an important factor, less stressful jobs, such as at Burger King or Farm Fresh, were readily sought after throughout the year. While many students chose not to work, a small percentage decided the extra money was desired or needed for expenses. Brentia Wells commented," Working helped me to gain a sense of responsibility while enjoying myself at the same time."



Entering a customer's order in the register, Brentia Wells tallies the total. Brentia enjoyed her job and t extra money it provided for activities and clothes.

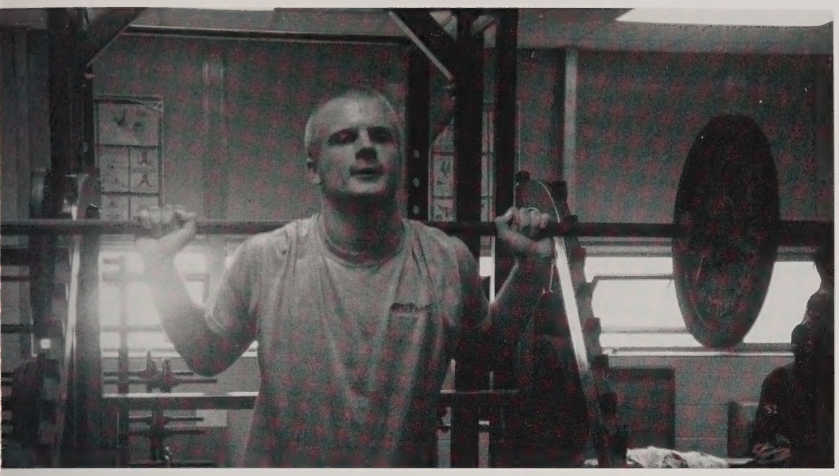
Working Out



uring a daily workout, Josh Sikes concentrates on controling the weight bar. Josh utilized the weight room ne entire year to remain in good physical shape.

Towards the end of the 800 hallways, there was one room that was overflowing with people at the end of each day: the weight room. The smell of muscular football players lingered throughout the hallways and the sweat from wrestlers pumping iron filled the room. Although all athletes enjoyed the convenience and privilege of working out, he weight room was also available to any student who wanted to use this facility. Josh Sikes, a varsity football player stated "I love working out in the weight room. It gives me a good opportunity to stay in shape after football season."

Concerts

Sitting on a blanket in the cool night air, students renewed their spirits at the GTE Ampitheater. During the summer months, many students found that swimming and going to the beach eventually got old, so attending various concerts helped fill the void in the evening hours. Most students just enjoyed going to hear the music of their favorite band and socialize with their friends. Junior Matt McDonald exclamied, "I love getting out to concerts and having a good time. Seeing a good band makes my summer all the more fun".

erfecting the intricacies of a three point turn, Mike Maugeri practices his driving in the school parking lot. like proved to be an impeccable driver, passing his test the first time around.

One of the most anticipated teenage rites of passage that was constantly on every sophomore's mind until their fifteenth birthday was recieivng their learner's permits. The tenth graders spent countless hours toiling over their Driver's Education books before heading down tot he DMV to take the infamous permit test. After recieving their permits, the sophomores experienced a newfound sense of freedom and responsibility as they hit the road to perfect their driving skills frist with their parents and then with a Behind the Wheel instrcutor before taking to the roads solo.

Leadership and Involvement

Participating in Sophomore class events, such as fund-raisers, were is a major part of the student body's extracurricular activities. The officers of the class were required to organize all of the class events and make the years' activities fruitful. The sophomore officers worked quite diligently to make the right decisions and perform to their best ability for the sophomore class. The officers took on a lot of responsibility in their jobs through organizing meetings to inform the rest of the underclassmen of the upcoming events.

Going over their plans for t-shirt designs, sophmore class officers Adam Appleton, Yaitza Rivera, Janie Larned, and Blake Hathaway take ideas from the other sophomores who attended the meeting.

Eating Out

Enjoying their after school snack, Dustin Pitzer, Ben Haase, and Meghan Gwaltney grab a soda. Burger King was one of the preferred 10th grade hangouts.

After school everyday there seemed to be a mad rush to the student parking lot as the Sophomores, not quite satisfied with their choices for school lunch, got a ride to the closest fast food restaurant. Taco Bell was one of the many favorites chosen by the Sophomores to get a taste of real food. Burger King was also a preferred choice. Sophomore Christy Nesselrode, like many others, enjoyed weekend excursions to local eateries as she explained, "Money is a bit tight with me personally so fast food is what we normally go for, but sometimes we go to Schlotzky's near Lynnhaven Mall." Carry out and delivery also helped the sophomores get food over the weekend since they can't drive.

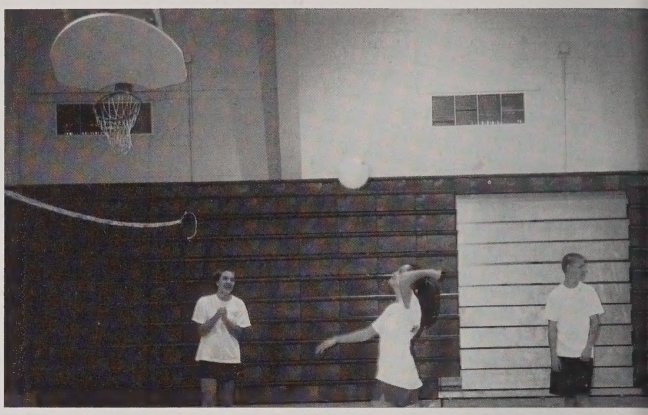
Health and Physical Education

To help break up the day, most tenth graders looked forward to their P.E. class where they could exercise and learn the rules of a variety of sports. Whether they liked tennis, basketball, softball or dodgeball, everyone enjoyed changing clothes and getting sweaty in the middle of their school day. Only one more year of mandatory P.E., and they would be home free. Tenth grader Travis Cheek, a member of Mrs. Conyer's class, exclaimed, "Volleyball is probably the most fun to have during my P.E. bell; there are a lot of good players." Five out of ten days were P.E., and the others were Driver Education. In Driver Education, students discovered the mysteries of "three-point turn" and how to "never take your eye off the road." During the second semester, tenth graders started Health class which taught them how to achieve "self-actualization," and the procedure for conducting C.P.R. on an infant. P.E. in the tenth grade was enjoyed by the majority of sophomores and the memories created were not soon forgotten.



Participating in the volleyball unit, sophomores Morgan Bosch and Jennifer Toop wor on their digs. Volleyball was one of the preferred games played all year.

Freshman Orientation

When was the only time that students wandered aimlessly into each other through the hallways before school even started? Freshman Orientation gave the rising freshmen a chance to discover people and places in their new school. So they wouldn't be confused or tardy to class on the first day of school, rising ninth graders attended the night of September third to become aquainted with the new environment. Their adventure started in the gym with their assigned SCA representative tour guide who walked through each hallway with them. Upperclass members of SCA took parents and new freshmen to the library, the cafeteria, The Wave, the gymnasium, the theater, the guidance and the main office and finally to individual classrooms.

Lending a helping hand, Andrew Woodard points to Lauren Thompson's classroom on a school map. The students who attended Freshmen Orientation were very grateful for the help of the upperclassmen.

Back to School Shopping

orting through their favorite styles at Corner 24, Amanda Miller, Ashley Moy , and Holly Goodman try o make a decision. Back-to-school shopping was one of the most important events.

The first school year at a brand new school brought up the infamous question to many freshmen: "What do I wear?". It seemed that eveyone went through the anxiety of picking out their wardrobe for the first day of school. Whether they wanted to make a good first impression on a new girl or guy, or the need to be "in" with the upcoming trends, students always wanted to start off on a good foot. A few weeks before the school year began, freshmen were spotted in the popular stores such as; "Wet Seal", "WRV", "Abercrombie & Fitch", "GAP", and many others. " I don't really care about trends, as much as being comfortable and looking nice", stated Jenny Detweiler. Durign the enitre month of August, freshmen spent time checking out the back-to-school styles.

Boarding the Bus

While some underclassmen drove to school, most could not. Freshmen were often forced to stand outside and wait at the bus stop, and then ride the dreaded "yellow cheesewagon" to school. Many ninth graders took advantage of catching rides from their siblings and friends, but others chose the option of utilizing their privilege of free bus transportation. When asked about her method of transportation, Ashley Ontko responded, "Riding the bus is okay, but I can't wait until I'm a senior so I can drive my friends to school." Some positive aspects of riding the bus were getting in extra study time and catching up with friends.

Departing the bus on a cold winter morning, Ashley Ontko rushes to get inside. Sponsored by the PTA, students were able to enter contests to win a decal for a month.

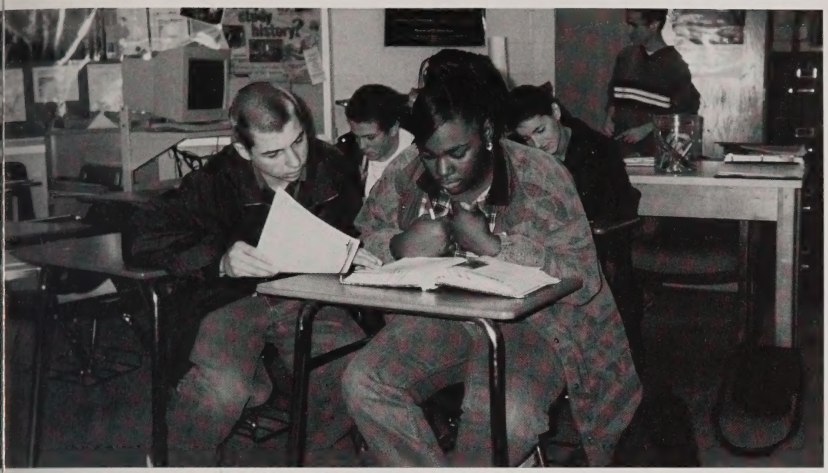
Exam Week



lling over semester exam study guides, Blake Lynch, Bridget Hall, Bobby Isenburg, and Deni Strom ncentrate on finding the correct answers. Most exams were in Scantron form which gave students a thora of choices.

For most freshmen, the experience of taking semester exams for the first time at the end of January was frightening and stressful, but the semester or midterm exams helped students and teachers evaluate the concepts learned. Although semester and final exams afforded students the opportunity to display knowledge they had accumulated, these two stressful times of the year caused copious hours of studying and cramming. The semester exam and the final exam only covered the material studied in the respective time frame. Once exams were finished, however, most freshmen looked forward to relaxing during the obligatory three-day weekend that followed the week-long semester exams or the two and a half months of summer vacation.

Morning Routines

Having to start school at 7:25 as opposed to 8:25 made many freshmen's morning routines hectic. With the usual routine of getting up, showering, eating, and getting books ready for school, freshmen rarely had time to relax in the morning. Some freshmen found that getting up earlier as opposed to later gave them time to read the paper and drink a cup of coffe in order to get a quick caffeine boost in the morning. Jenny Detweiler commented, "Its awful when you oversleep because you don't have time to do your regular morning routine, and that can really mess up your day." Throughout the year, freshmen learned to adjust to the early mornings that came with being in high school.

Eating a bowl of Frosted Flakes before school, Freshmen Andrew Poole finishes his breakfast before boardi the bus. Many freshmen found that a bowl of cereal would start their day off right.

Adminstration

Whether attending a sporting event, giving out advice, sitting in on a class, attending teacher-parent conferences, or filling in on a hall duty assignment, the adminstrative team was always there supporting students and parents. Assistant Principal Carol Anthony commented, " the best part of being at First Colonial is the community from which we draw our students. I have worked at several schools throughout Virginia Beach, and First Colonial and Lynnhaven Middle are my favorite picks in the city". Every member of the administrative team has taught in the classroom, coached various sports, or worked in guidance and counseling before assuming this assignment. Their express love of working with young people was evident in their dedication of trying to understand the problems and emotions of this age and offering help and suggestions for solutions. "I enjoy helping students-all students-discover answers to their various problems, and watching them grow and develop into mature young adults", remarked Mr. Carlton Hill. The administrative team demonstrated their support throughout the year by attending sporting events, fine arts programs and various awards ceremonies. Through their words and actions, they were able to keep the school united and moving forward.

Teacher of the Year

Watching students over the years progress from German I to any of the advanced levels was what Mrs. Lynne Lewis, Teacher of the Year, considered to be the best part of her job. Frau Lewis began her teaching career twenty-five years ago at First Colonial and has enjoyed teaching various levels of German. Presently she teaches German III, IV and Advanced Placement and is the department chair. Growing up in Long Island, N.Y., she studied at Bowling Green State University, Ohio and spent her junior year studying in Salzburg, Austria. Frau Lewis remarked, " The main objective I have for my students is to help them develop proficiency in reading, writing, listening and speaking the language". If she could change one aspect of her job it would be for "teachers to be more respected by society. Most people don't realize the vast amount of outside school work that teachers take home with them every day, but if they did, they would reconsider their perception of the job". Frau Lewis knew when she began the first grade that she wanted to become a teacher. And the people who most affected her life and who she looked up to were her parents and teachers. Dillan (Brittany Spaniel) and Maggie (English Setter) are her two dogs with whom she and her husband enjoy spending afternoons and weekends taking them to fields and the beach for runs. Frau Lewis has never wanted to teach at any other school because " the best part of being at First Colonial is the family atmosphere of the faculty and staff, and the great students we have here".

As a special agent for the U.S. Army, James Reilly, wife Marion and brother-in-law Daniel Brily enjoy relaxing in a nightclub in Columbus, Ohio. Daniel had just returned from the South Pacific Theater and had to break up a fight at the club when James was questioned about not serving his country (James worked as a secret agent or war spy).

Being involved with the students on a daily basis was the express desire of Mr. Chad Miller the new Student Activities Coordinator. Mr. Miller had already proved his love of working with young people for the last two years as the athletic trainer for all the sports. "The best part of my job is working with the students in sports and activities. This is the 'once in a lifetime' opportunity for them to develop into well rounded individuals of which I hope to be a part", commented Mr. Miller. Growing up in Gilmore, Iowa, he was educated at Iowa State University and received his masters at Old Dominion University. Mr. Miller is presently single and enjoys playing and running with his boxer, Tyson. The two people he most admires and looks up to are his mother and father.

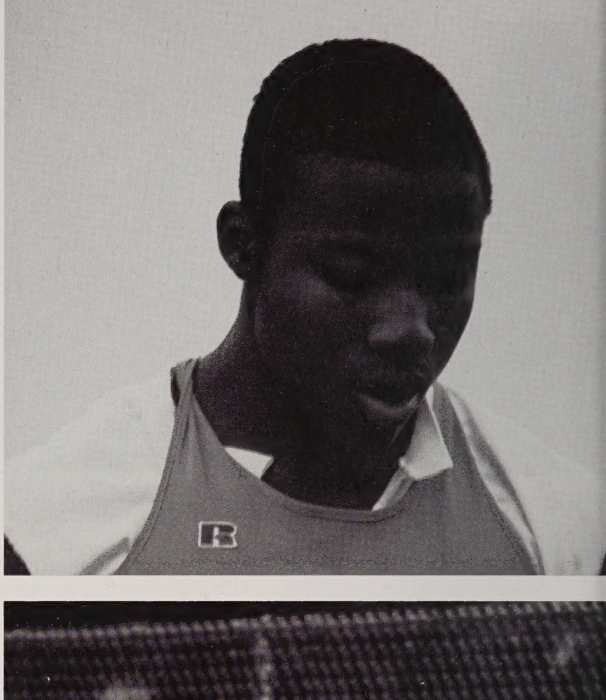
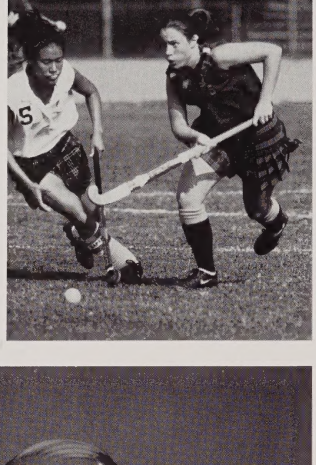
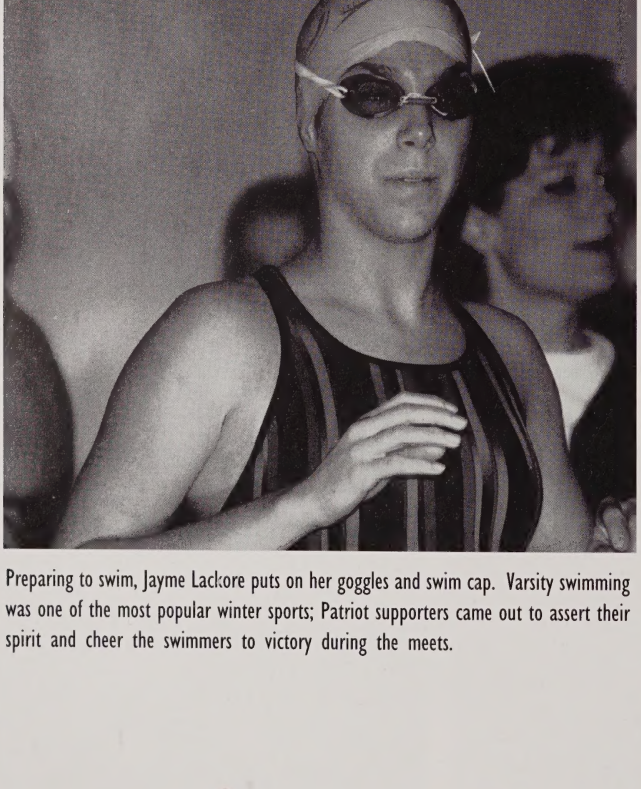
Taking time to contemplate the upcoming race, Adam Powell keeps himself focused on his strategy. Track and field athletes used their time alone to prepare themselves mentally.



Racing down the field, team captain, Jamie Collins prepares to beat the opponent to the offensive play. Jamie and the other senior members of the varsity field hockey team taught the younger underclassmen how to assert aggressive offensive plays.





Preparing to swim, Jayme Lackore puts on her goggles and swim cap. Varsity swimming was one of the most popular winter sports; Patriot supporters came out to assert their spirit and cheer the swimmers to victory during the meets.

Following through on her serve, Laurie Phillips demonstrates to her opponent powerful slam. In this move, Laurie was able to catch the Tallwood player off g and score a point.

One Moment in Time

"Each day I live
I want to be
A day to give
The best of me
I'm only one
But not alone
My finest day
Is yet unknown

I broke my heart
Fought every gain
To taste the sweet
I face the pain
I rise and fall
Yet through it all
This much remains

I've lived to be
The very best
I want it all
No time for less
I've laid the plans
Now lay the chance
Here in my hands"

One Moment in Time

Athletics were imperative to ensure a healthy mind and body for all Patriot players. Each season, from the autumn home football games to the spring track meets, sports taught the importance of diligent practice and performing as a team. In both girls and boys teams including every sport from golf, to softball, field hockey, basketball, and swimming, students were brought together forming friendships from an originally diverse group.

"I love coming out and supporting the Patriot football team, these games give students a chance to socialize and relax after a long week of stress and work."

Record Breakers

Boys' Outdoor Track

Despite rainy days and other adverse spring weather, the boys' track season was a record breaking experience for all. At the Conn-Maden Relays in Newport News, Brian Kollar and Eric Miller broke a twenty-one year old record in the discus throw relay event. Coach Charlie Fischel exclaimed "All good things come to he/she who works and waits provideth they worketh like heck while they waiteth."

As this was a team with many young members who demonstrated much potential for the future, their success was proof that their confidence and patience paid off at the big invitational meets. Key members were: Brian Kollar, Adam Powell, Eric Miller, Manzell Hines, Josh Owens, and Roshawn Baker. Manzell Hines was selected as the Most Improved Player and Brian Kollar was selected the Most Valuable Player.

Displaying speed and agility in the hurdeling event, Palmer Roberts breezes to the finish. His determination and concentration paid off throughout the season.

Using great force and accuracy, Brian Kollar tosses the discuss to a great distance. tremendous accomplishments earned him Virginian Pilot/Ledger Star Male Athlet the Year.

Girls' Outdoor Track

ng an afternoon practice session, Becky Waterfield concentrates on throwing the put further than before. This event proved to be Becky's favorite as she continued mprove her scores throughout the season.

The Girls' Varsity Track team, led by Coach Leslie Benjamin, ended their season with two wins, three losses, and placed eighth in the district. Becky Waterfield commented, "The two wide spread wins against Kellam and Ocean Lakes were sweet victories which encouraged us to aim higher". Although the season was very challenging, it proved to be good for developing the girls' strengths and abilities.

Leading the team were Afika Stamps, Ashley Markovitch, Kawahi Palmer, and Kim Gregory who displayed great strength in all the field events. Jenny Stilwell earned Most Valuable, and Jessica Lapierre developed through the season to become Most Improved. The girls believed the Blue and Gold Baton brought them good luck through the tougher meets. "The team was a great group of young ladies. One of the best I ever had since I've been here," stated Coach Leslie Benjamin.

With intense concentration, Jenni Stilwell executes the long jump at the Ocean Lakes meet. Jenny excelled in her designated events and caused the opposing teams to lose valuable points.

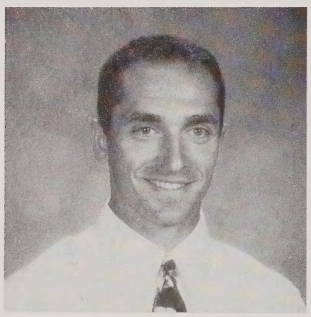
The Time of Endurance

Cross Country

Team captain for the girls, Monica Luce runs for her first place position at Trashmore. Monica not only improved every event, but led the team to district meet.

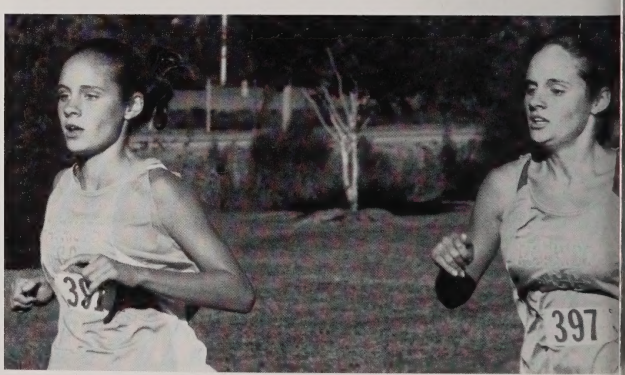
The hot temperatures at every meet caused the Cross Country team to frequently spray themselves with the water handed them along the way. Coached by Paul Facteau, the team finished the season with a great record. More long distance running was required of the runners who were well conditioned for it. Key starters were: Monica Lucente, Matt Emborski, Ian Lawrence, and Leigh Levitt. Although as Coach Facteau stated, "Every member was a starter and just as important as anyone else on the team".

Runners were seen trekking through the community every afternoon after their daily conditioning. "One conditioning exercise was the tire workout which was fun, but really tough since we had to pull a tire 100 feet in one direction and back to the starting point" commented sophomore Brandi Metts. The team's strengths were demonstrated in their individual endurance level and their strong sense of encouraging each other. At every meet, Jeff Mingin managed to have untied shoes, but was determined to complete his event no matter what happened. But the most memorable moment of the season was when Andrew Foster finished his meet with one shoe on.



Coach Paul Facteau

As the sound of the gun starts off the three mile run, the Cross Country team strives to get first place. The team conducted daily practice along Great Neck, First Colonial Roads and Shore Drive as well as a few sessions at Mount Trashmore to prepare themselves for the miles of tiresome running.



As they set their eyes on the finish line, Sarah and Jessica Lapierre run out the leg of the race. The Lapierres trained all summer long to maintain high physical standa and to prepare for the upcoming track season.

The 1997-1998 Varsity Baseball team swung and fielded their way to a successful 17-4 season. The Patriots started training early, concentrating on building strength and endurance. The team reviewed old plays from previous games, setting themselves up for an awesome playing season. This strategy ensured that the team would be in top physical and mental condition once the season started. All of their patience and effort paid off with numerous benefits which included a victorious 4-2 win over the top-ranked Salem Sundevils!

Key players included seniors Jack Slagle, Joe Dunlap, Scott Hardee, James Cummings, and Matt McDonnell, and the team MVP was Bruce George. "I enjoyed being part of a team with so many great guys! We really pulled together this year and had fun doing it!" Kurt Isenburg commented when asked about the season.

Under the guidance of Coach Norbie Wilson the team learned to work diligently together and to support each other. Coach Wilson remarked, "This was the first season in ten years that the Varsity Baseball team didn't make it to the Regional Tournament, but they gave it their all!".

The Lady Patriots began and ended the season with a bang! After many hours of conditioning and preseason practices, the girls established their positions in the field as well as at the plate. With returners Lynsay Gore, Katherine Morissey, Liz Drew, Audrey Harris, Tamara Lyons, and Mary Lenhart, the team advanced to the playoffs seeded as sixth in the district. Ending with a final seven wins and ten losses, the team was able to utilize many younger players including Morghan Bosch, Jessica Whalen, Jenny Bell, Jesse Ollek, Shannon Pfieffer, and Brooke Mathias.

The guidance and persistence of Coach Sam Scarborough and Assistant Coach Steve Beam was imperative to the team's development and the girls bonding together to work more efficiently as a unit. As commented by Coach Sam Scarborough, " The girls learned to work hard and play hard. They also learned how to 'think on their feet' ". Toward the end of the season, the girls won five consecutive games including a three to zero win over Green Run.

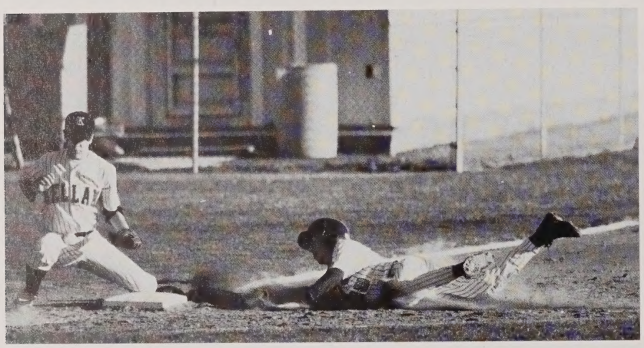
The Junior Varsity Baseball team ended a successful season with a victorious 8-2 record. With Coach Jimmy Hunt's endless support, the team performed better than ever. Coach Hunt repeated the team's motto, "The road to success is always under construction." The first loss of the season to Cox was later transformed into the team's most memorable moment when they came back and defeated their long time rival in a grueling game.

The outstanding hitting of Clay Friske, Mark Hodges, Mike Supa, and Most Valuable Player, Pete Robinson were the strengths of the team. The effort demonstrated by the Most Improved Players, Mike Supa and Mark Hodges, motivated all the boys to continue working hard. "We started out slow but ended strong," claimed Coach Hunt. "It was a perfect junior varsity season."



Sliding into third base, Steve Parker tries to get his team ahead on the scoreboard. Steve's hard work contributed to the team's win over Kellam.

Varsity Football

With a team made up of mostly underclassmen and seven seniors, the Varsity Football team ranked number four in the Tidewater area in the final rankings. Quarterback Colin Mitchell led the district in passing with the help of the aggressive defense. According to Coach Webster, " The most memorable moment of the season was playing in the Regional Playoffs". The 21-20 win over Bayside was the teams' most intense and challenging game along with the fact that they finished second in the Beach District with an 8-2 record. During the playoff game with Western Branch, the boys did their best to hold the opposition to only 20 points. " The Regional Playoff game was the toughest, but we did our best", commented Ricky Pittman.

Selected as Most Valuable Players were: Colin Mitchell, Jerome King, Chris Arthur, Sean Cason, Jeremy Perry and Jeremiah Harless. The Most Improved Players for the season were: Ryan Parker, Jason Colon, and Luis Rodriquez. Key players were: Colin Mitchell, Jerome King, Chris Arthur, Josh Owens, Ryan Parker, Brandon Monroe, Joe Throckmorton, Todd Berry, Jeremy Perry, Sean Cason, Jason Colon, Chris Smith, Jeremiah Harless, Shane Roseboom and Harlan Hendricks.

Varsity Field Hockey

From start to finish, the Girls' Varsity Field Hockey team showed their school spirit by competing to the best of their ability. On game days team members wore their uniforms to all classes to alert students and encourage support at sporting events. This was a rebuilding year for the team who ended their season with a 2-7 record and came out seventh in the district. Tryouts for the team were held in late August which afforded the girls time to condition, learn strategic plays, and study the opposing teams before the season began. Coach Susan Calahan remarked, "This is my third year to coach field hockey, and I found this group of girls to be the most united in all their efforts".

The most memorable game for the team was when they met Cox on the field. "It was very exciting to play against the State Champions. We knew they'd be hard to beat, so we went in with a positive attitude and hoped to glean ideas from them", commented Laura Machaj. Voted the Most Valuable Player was Becky Spangler and Most Improved was Monique Cooke and Lauren Cryen. As the team motto was loudly resounded before every game, the girls truly did "Start to finish and win as one!"

Getting ready to make a pass, Lau Machaj moves to the ball with grace a ease. Throughout the season, Laura w instrumental in moving the ball up t field.

The Undefeated J.V. Football

The Junior Varsity Football team amazed Coach Wilson by becoming the first undefeated team in the school's history! "The most memorable moment of the season was during the Salem game. Down 22-10 at the half, the boys methodically came back out and shoved the ball down the sundevils' throats to gain the victory" exclaimed Coach Wilson. The game against Tallwood was another intense and challenging time for the boys.

Displaying their overall strength through the defense, the team successfully earned their place in history. There were ten key players featured throughout the season including Anthony Frates selected as the MVP and Kevin Mayfield as the Most Improved Player.

Intently watching an ultimately victorious game versus Tallwood, Daniel Hubbard, Thomas Mayfield, and Travis Davis ponder the upcoming plays. Support from players on and off of the field helped the guys complete their undefeated season.

Boys' Varsity Soccer

Surprising everyone, the Boys' Varsity Soccer team had the most outstanding season yet. With an unprecedented record of eleven wins,two ties, and no losses, the team earned the respect from opposing Beach District Teams, by not only beating Cox, but by proceeding on to the Regional semifinals.

Moving on from regular season games to the District Tournament, the team beat Salem 1-0 in penalty kicks. Advancing on to the next round, the boys defeated Cox for the second time 2-1, which earned them the district title. Though all the team members made important contributions, team MVP, Rob Wright, was renowned for his amazing jumping and sliding abilities. Led by key players Rob Wright, Colin Young (MIP), Kevin Coster, Ryan O'Donnell, Blake Templeman, Ross Fickenscher, Robert Paulsen, Nick Pantalo, Rip Gordon, Jarrod Smith, Harlan Hendricks, and Danny Chung, the team took off in the first round with a 5-0 victory against Hickory. When asked about the season, Colin Young commented, "Even with a relatively young team, we managed to succeed in both our league and the district tournament." Although the team lost in the second round to Maury 0-1 (in penalty kicks), the boys had an overall spectacular season.

Clearly in control of the ball, Jenni Ackerman strides down field. Jennifer v not a force to be reckoned with as ma opposing teams realized.

As Coach Janet Rowlands held her breath at the District Tournament, the Girls' Varsity Soccer team went into sudden death overtime against Kempsville. "It was the most suspenseful and exciting time of the entire season", remarked Coach Rowlands. Even though the girls were able to keep the chiefs from scoring until the very end, they lost by one point. The girls' strengths were their toughness, determination and team effort. As the team controlled the ball, Lisa Nesselrod made numerous saves to make beating Cox by 1-0 the highlight of the regular season. A special way of bonding as explained by Kim Hopwood was " I enjoyed freshman initiation. The new members were awoken at 5 a.m., dressed in ridiculous clothes which they had to wear all day. But before going to school we blindfolded them and made a few stops at IHOP and Food Lion".

The key players for the season were: Sabrina Fenton, Jennifer Ackerman, Jamie Collins, and Laurie Nesselrode. Once again, the Boys' Volleyball Team clenched the hand of success which culminated with a victorious season. Having made a name for themselves as "the team to beat," the group unified and learned to work together as one on the court. Coach Mark Lottenville exclaimed, "To be successful, we must neither underestimate nor overestimate our own abilities." With these words of wisdom, Coach Mark Lottenville refined another batch of fine volleyball players. Victory was common to these athletes, which attracted many fans to their exciting matches.

Leading the team were co-captains Richard Schneider and Tim Jones. At the end of the season, Richard was named District Player-of-the Year and was appointed to 1st Team All Regional as well as 1st Team All-Tidewater. Tim Jones was also appointed to 2nd Team All-District and 2nd Team All-Tidewater. Varsity Girls' Volleyball

Placing third in the district and third in the regular season, the Girls' Volleyball team ended with an overall record of 13-9. Coach Edie Magula and Mr. Del Rodil led the girls through conditioning and daily practices which began on August 20. For two hours a day, mostly in the morning, the team worked on various game strategies and studied the plays of several opposing schools. By the end of the season, Co-Captains Heather White and Jenny Steele had earned places on the first and second All-Beach teams while key players Jennifer Drinko and Carrie Burton won honorable mention for the All-Beach teams.

Other starters were junior Kim Hopwood and sophomores Kerry Turner and Morgan Bosch. "The most challenging game was against Salem. We approached every match against them with a positive attitude. Even though we never beat them, we know we did our best",commented Barabara Besal. Junior Kim Hopwood seemed to sum up the entire season when saying "Volleyball season was a blast! We were friends off the court and a team on the court. And we shared many great times and memories!"Most notably was Kelly Drinko's famous yell, "Vamos, F.C.!"

Game, Set, Match!

Varsity Boys' Tennis

Every match of the season was very exiting for the Varsity Boys' Tennis team and their enthusiastic crowds. Lead by Coach Jim Mather, the boys gave their best and played skillfully to end with a 6-6 record.

The team captain, Zach Bradley was selected as the Most Valuable Player accompanied by Ben Flora the Most Improved Player. Chris Frankenfield was awarded the team's player with the Best Attitude. Key players were: Dustin Rich, Martin Tsai, and Todd Detweiler.

Zach Bradley's three set match at the Beach District Tournament was a memorable experience for the team as they watched his overhead slams. The most intense matches were always the ones against Cox. The team's strengths were the players 3 through 6, who were Dustin Rich, Martin Tsai, Zack Bradley, and Ryan Miller. The highlights of the last year had to be the teams 8 to 1 wins over Salem and Green Run.

"Don't hit the old man", was the team's motto, and for good luck Zack's girlfriend, Christie Marzahn, came to every match. As coach Jim Mather said," Next year is payback time."

Girls' Tennis

The success of the Girls' Tennis Team this year was an amazing triumph. The season closed with an excellent 8-1 record ending all the way in Richmond for the state tournament. Coach Laurie Shiflet-Hackbirth held vigorous practices starting in August resulting in two top players, Suzie Birdsong and Michelle Chung, who remained undefeated throughout the entire season. Suzie, along with her doubles partner Laurie Phillips, was unstoppable as well.

With some of the best players in the district, the enthusiastic team of 21 Lady Patriots enjoyed every victorious moment of the season. First, the girls won the second place seasonal district title and advanced to the district tournament. There, Amber Miller won the individual B-bracket title of third in the district. The girls then moved on to the regional tournament as a team, the first time in two years. They won second place and qualified for the quarterfinals of the state tournament.

Through the hard work and dedication of the girls tennis team and the guidance of their coach, the girls definitely proved they could accomplish anything!

A team composed of all underclassmen could have made for a long and stressful season, but that was not the case for the Varsity Golf Team. Coached by Leo Anthony, the team completed one of their most successful seasons ever, finishing with a 12 - 3 record and a second place finish in the Beach District. They also achieved third place in the regional tournament. Led by the team's MVP Blair Townsend and Most Improved Player, Max Hoes, the team was unstoppable. Other starters included Chris Horan, Mike Giglotti, Andrew Ruggles, and Ryan Miller who qualified for individuals in the state tournament.

Although this team was composed of all underclassmen, they played with maturity and skill. The highlight of the season came with a win over Bayside in which the team shot a combined score of 294, a Beach district low score record. The win over Bayside was also Coach Anthony's 400th win as a golf coach, a major accomplishment. With 400 wins already to his credit, Coach Anthony is looking forward to an exciting season next year with all of the starters returning The Patriots are also looking for another chance to win the Beach District title from long time rival Cox.

The most memorable moment of the season was the double victory over Green Run. The first half of the season progressed well, but the team suffered during the second half due to sickness and injuries. Adam Powell, senior, remarked, " the most intense and challenging meet the team experienced was against Salem and Kempsville; the two largest teams in the division".

The Indoor Track team was comprised of mostly ninth graders with two juniors and four seniors. Liz Drew was selected as the team's Most Valuable Player and Shaunta Gibbs was named the Most Improved Player. Key players were Liz Drew and Palmer Roberts who were also the high scorers. Coach Kaminski commented that the team's strengths were due to "the youth and potential of this basically new group". Improving their defensive strategies throughout the season, the Varsity Boys' Basketball team proved they were not quitters. Coach Mark Butts utilized his first year with the boys by making strenuous requirements during practice and games. As he reflected, " the team's strengths were that they developed good teamwork hustle". The most memorable game of the season was the home game against Green Run where the boys' triumphed. But the most intense and challenging game was the home game against Kellam which they won.

Key players for the season were: Mike Rouse, Ryan Withers, Kurt Isenburg, Terry Edwards and Jeff Severinghaus. Selected as the Most Valuable Player was Mike Rouse and the Most Improved Player was Kurt Isenburg. To summarize the season, "the boys played hard and never quit" stated Coach Butts. The Girls Varsity Basketball Team displayed dedication and commitment through their practice sessions everyday after school. They worked on various drills and exercises during these practices. The love of the game drove the Lady Patriots to spend countless hours practicing their jump shots and dribbling techniques. It was determination and teamwork that prepared the girls for a difficult season.

The team was led by MVP, Becca McClain. Becca commented, " This year was a rebuilding year, but we did surprise some teams. We have all great things to look forward to next year." Other key players were Sami Strom, Cory Cooper, Carrie Burton, and Melanie Crisp. Although the team lost three players due to knee injuries, they kept their spirits high and their heads in the game. One of the more memorable games of the season came when the varsity team defeated Salem on their home court. Coach Bowman reflected, "This team had very coachable players who improved tremendously as the season progressed." Doubling their victory total from last year, the Girl's Varsity Basketball team's motto, "TEAM", led them through a strong and worthwhile season.

Swimming

Swimming their way into another successful season, the Varsity Swim team completed their fith year of competition. Led by coaches Greg Crowley and Kim McCanna the swimmers were highly motivated and practiced with enthusiasm and dedication. Unlike the "freshmen power" team of two years ago, this years' boys' team used upper classmen strength to place high in regionals, and even advanced a few swimmers to the state meet in Richmond. The team was lead by Most Valuable Player Dan Maxur and Most Improved Player Trey Standing. Relying on their strong relays and team unity and friendliness between swimmers, the boys did their best in every meet. The team gained inspiration and good luck from Corey Harris' "ghetto goggles" and always enjoyed watching Gerard Golden trying to pick up "chicks." The boys had an extremley successful season and look forward to another chance to defeat Cox for the Beach District Championship.

Rolling, rolling, rolling... Gymnastics

Jumping, rolling, running, and swinging, the Girls Gymnastics team participated in another prosperous season. The athletes contributed long hours of practice and concentration to reach their goals this season. By holding team practices several times a week, the girls' skills skyrocketed them to success. With the strong help of key memebers Susan Funk, Lucille Holmes, and Paige Slepsky, the team qualified for the state meet. Susan Funk, the MVP for the fourth consecutive year, won ninth place in bars and eleventh place on the beam at states. Lucille Holmes, most improved, won eighth place on the vault at states.

The main factor that allowed this team to shine was their strong support and teamwork. The girls exchanged goody bags from "secret pals," which definitely helped their enthusiasm in tough meets against Princess Anne and Tallwood. The team coach, Andrea Bell, said that the team's defining strengths were their "hardwork and good talent." The gymnastics team is certainly looking forward to carrying on their aquired skills for a great season next year.

Dance Team

Beginning rehearsals during the early days of summer, the Patriette Dance Team prepared for the 1998-1999 season. The eight girl team attended numerous summe practices to perfect their first routine of the season; the Freshmen Orientation in August. The girls' first appearance, which was only a preview of their talent, was met wit thunderous applause from parents and students alike.

After their August debut, the team began diligently perfecting routines for football season. Perfecting such stunts as flips, aerials, and two person cartwheels, the Dance Tea was always able to amaze the crowd with both their acrobatic abilities and synchronization. After concluding a great football season, they began polishing new routines f debut during basketball season. In addition to their appearances at sporting events, the Dance Team performed Michael Jackson's "Smooth Criminal" at the Mr. First Coloni Pageant.

Led by senior co-captains April Bell and Farrell Scifres, the girls benefited from their four years of experience and expertise. Mrs. Samdahl, sponsor, and Lisa Midgett, choreographe provided the leadership and helpful guidance the girls needed to complete their best year yet. But the saddest moment for the girls was their last basketball performanc as they had four graduating seniors leaving the team. They celebrated the seniors' last game by reviving the crowd's favorite dance: "Shake It!" Although the team w miss the graduating seniors, they are looking forward to next year's season.

Varsity Wrestling
Time to Pin

Facing a challenging year, the wrestling team finished their season with a 8-9-1 record. The team consisted of many underclassmen who were ready to learn and mature as wrestlers. Because they practiced and conditioned countless hours after school they became serious in their strategy and competition and perfected their skill and technique. The team improved drastically as the season progressed.

Coach Bothel named Alex Winfield, junior, as the Most Valuable Wrestler for his sportsmanship and aggressive drive on the mat. Alex placed third in the Beach District Tournament, giving him a chance to wrestle in the Regional Tournament. Also placing in the Beach District Tournament and wrestling in Regional's, the team's Most Improved Wrestler, freshman Anthony Frates, proved his ability to win more than once. Being members of the team for three years, juniors, Todd Berry and Joel Throckmorton added to the strength of the team.

Overcoming their challenges, the team ended their season on quite a winning streak. They defeated Hopewell in an out-of-district match, 37-30, an important win for every team member. Incorporating their willingness to learn, physical strength, and developed skill, the wrestlers proved themselves as a strong team.

Varsity Cheering

Cute girl, short skirt, and bubbly was the description fitting the cheerleader. The Varsity Cheering Squad proved that a cheerleader was 99% athlete and 1% cute girl in a short skirt! The girls endured hours of repetitive practices to ensure that fans and teams would always be energized and motivated, and their work was never done due to the fact that they had to cheer for every sport. Cheerleading was a strenuous sport that incorporated tumbling, jumping, and dancing with synchronization an essential element which was constantly displayed through the girls' physical stunts and their jumping abilities. Co-captains Melanie McDowell and Amy Hammaker led the squad to an eighth place finish at a national cheerleading competition held at the College of William and Mary in Williamsburg. Brandy Martin, Amy Hammaker, Marquita Bates, and Beth Vladich used this season as an opportunity to prepare for the January 2000 Pro-bowl. With their spirited faces, the cheerleaders helped keep the student body motivated and involved in school activities. In order to prepare for this season, the Varsity Girl's cheerleaders were required to attend a workshop over the summer to learn various cheering techniques and stumbling stunts. Shelly Swain commented, " Although this year has been hectic, we have really come together as a squad to achieve our goals."

Conditioning with the Varsity team allowed the J.V. Wrestlers to learn new and efficient moves that aided them during their season. Also daily workouts in the weight room and practice sessions with other team members built strength and developed strategies that would be used in their meets. Some jv wrestlers were moved up to the varsity team on certain occasions. Although the wrestlers only competed in exhibition, their minds were serious about the sport.

Three of the wrestlers placed high in the J.V. Tournament. With pride and determination, the wrestlers took every chance to compete, and, at many meets, wrestled more than one man. The eventful season established a base for next year's team. Remarked Coach Larry Spruill, "I was proud that the boys placed in exhibition as well as they did. I really look forward to next year".

A Jump Above The Rest

J.V. Cheering

When the Patriots were down and out and the crowd was less than enthusiastic, cheerleaders were always prepared to use school pride to boost spirit in the team and fans. Combining strength, coordination, and energy the J.V. Cheering squad put forth great effort in order to accomplish their tasks. The girls performed bold stunts, cheers, and chants that kept the crowd entertained and enthused.

Because the fall and winter sports seasons required long hours of cheering, the girls worked extra hard to prepare themselves physically. Their first training began with a week long camp which taught them exercises for warm-up and helped them improve their endurance.

"And all this time, the river flowed
Endlessly to the sea
If I had my way I'd ke a boat from the river
And I'd bury the old man,
I'd bury him at sea.
And all this time the river flowed
Endlessly like a silent tear
And all this time the river flowed."

Integral parts of student life, clubs and academics intertwined and created the perfectly balanced learning environment for Patriots. During the school day, academics provided a base that, after school, was enriched by the plethora of interest, service, and honor clubs. Whatever the interest, there were clubs or academic endeavors to meet students' potentials and fill their time.

"Being an active participant in the marching band provided me with the opportunity to be involved in school activities while perfecting my musical skills."

Ruling the School
Leadership

Good leadership was the objective for all the class officers and the SCA. However, being a leader meant much more than winning an election or receiving a title. A leader was a person who directed others toward common goals. This year, many leaders from all four classes and the SCA accomplished many goals in the school and community.

A main goal for the freshman class was to get students involved in their school and community during their first year of high school. Among the classes' most successful endeavors were selling Entertainment Books and The Cheasapeake Bay Oyster Restoration Project. The sophomore class was busy designing t-shirts and selling Entertainment Books. The class of 2000 was definitley "representin' "this year! The spirited juniors' main goal was to lower the cost of the Ring Dance tickets. They completed this task by doing such fundraisers as T-shirt sales, Mr. F.C., and Computer Dating. The juniors also gave back to their community by raising money for a needy family. The senior class made sure to make an awesome final impression in the school. This year the seniors kept themselves busy with activities such as T-shirt sales, Cookie sales, the Cow Plop fundraiser, Senior Prom, and Gradfest.

The S.C.A. worked under the theme, "Every Wave is a Challenge." Some of their biggest events were Homecoming, Battle of the Bands, a student exchange with Cape Henry Colligiate and Salem High and a leadership workshop. When asked what he liked about being a leader, S.C.A President Tim Lett commented, "Being a leader is very fulfilling; it gives me the opprotunity to make a difference in my school and community."

Professing his love to girlfriend Jenny Steele, Ross Fickenscher recites a love poem. The poem was part of Ross's talent in the Mr. First Colonial Pagaent which helped him win over Jenny as well as the audience full of girls.

Service Organizations
Helping Out

There were several clubs from which students could be a member that were ctive in assisting the community. Each of these clubs' objectives were to improve e world around them through charity, food drives, and school help.

ponsoring Operation Smile, the Happy Club was dedicated to raising financial d which benefited underprivileged children for surgeries related to mouth eformities. Their main fund-raiser was a car wash during Neptune Festival eekend at the beach.

he SADD/ Just Say No club was a volunteer organization that helped the udents in the school learn how to say no to drugs and alcohol. Events they onsored were Red Ribbon Week, The Great American Smoke-Out, and the om Promise.

ffering academic and social help to freshmen and new students, the Peer Mentor ganization paired upperclassmen with these students. They were available if the ewcomers needed help adjusting to their new environment or just had questions.

rganized by juniors Matt Bowling and Ricky Pittman, the Bible club, in its first ear, became a popular after school event. Organized by Juniors Matt Bowling nd Ricky Pittman, Gerard commented "There are not too many organizations at hool that promote Christianity among teens. So we got it together and had a lot fun doing it!"

Delivering an inspriational message to his peers, junior Matt Bowling elaborates about the story. During Bible Club meetings, members discussed the meaning of Biblical stories and how they relate to today's society.

Personal Enrichment
Human Interest

A common element that bound students of all sizes, shapes, colors, and backgrounds together was eir goal to improve their school and community. Being a member of the Surfrider Club, United ices, Key Club, Unity Council, or Odessy of the Mind afforded students the opportunities to develop nderstandings of others, learn how to give rather than to receive, and have fun while helping hers.

e Key Club's sole purpose was to help others in the community by volunteering their time and forts. Having 30 members in the organization, the club was able to be very busy with projects ch as the Thanksgiving Food Drive, food baskets at Christmas, and provide toys and clothes for derprivileged children at Christmas. Time was spent as a volunteer during the Red Cross Blood ive. They prepared bag lunches for the Judeo-Christian Outreach Center, and volunteered to serve the soup kitchen for the homeless. When asked, Kristen Inglis responded, "Being in the Key Club a great way to help others in the community".

mbers of the Unity Council endeavored to unit students of different cultural backgrounds whether be race, creed or color. The United Voices was a gospel choir formed and directed by senior, ysius Albritton. Aloysius has sung all his life and has performed in contests at the Apollo Theatre New York City. He has brought enthusiasm and energy to the group which has been evident in their performances.

Musicallly Inclined Orchestra

bughout the year, stringed instruments played an important role as an integral oponent in the Fine Arts department. These young musicians were required to ctice a minimum of six hours a week, and those who were truly dedicated, spent n more time. Achievements gained through the hard work were enjoyed by a majority of the members. The Chamber and the Advanced Orchestras were er the direction of Miss Marguerite Alley.

The group which consisted of two bells, grades 9-12, consistently worked on nique skills which enabled the players to improve in strength and versatility on r individual instruments. Ms. Alley's favorite aspect of teaching orchestra was hen the students finally realized that what they were singing sounded like music.". also enjoyed the orchestra's advanced performance skills. The objectives of hestra focused on the improvement of technical skills, ensemble skills and the ching of music history and theory.

After the orchestra's Christmas concert, they performed with the chorus and some the band members at the highly successful USO-Style show. The year ended with erformance trip to New York during Memorial Day weekend. Ricky Pittman, a or who played the viola commented, " I really enjoyed being part of the hestra because it enhanced my musical skills and I was able to watch the notes of life come together."

Singing up a Storm

Chorus

Working in concert with the orchestra, the Madrigal Singers and Concert Choir held their annual Concert in October. Several disciplines within the Fine and Performing Arts Department spent a rehearsal time coordinating various groups for performances. The combined choirs and the nber orchestra performed "How Lovely Is Thy Dwelling Place" and "The Glory of the Lord" to inate the program.

nie House auditioned against six hundred Virginia seniors and was selected to the very prestigious or Honors Choir placing second in the state. In November, thirty choral students auditioned for rict II Chorus with fourteen students being selected for the top chorus. Their concert was held at cess Anne High on February 13.

r November, the real work began with preparation for several Christmas performances in the water area during December: Virginia Beach General Hospital, The Well's Theatre, Virginia Marine nce Museum and various businesses. The choirs also prepared themselves for the first U.S.O. Style v held at N.A.S. Oceana on December 19. The integration team's theme for the year was World II so Ms. Alley, Mrs. Bone, and Mrs.Curtis dug deep into researching songs of that period. These hers also discussed clothing, hair styles and social and historical events.

April 16, Melanie House and Amanda Frittelli sang "Happy Birthday" over the school intercom to Stowers! As a tribute to all veterans, the May 26 spring show included such songs: "It Don't n A Thing If It Ain't Got That Swing", "Rhapsody in Rhythm", "Sing, Sing, Sing", "Blues In The ıt", and "Don't Sit Under The Apple Tree". Then off to New York for the spring trip and a ormance of Schubert's Mass in G at the St. Ignatius Cathedral.

Artistic Minds

Art

Throughout the year student's art work could be seen all over the school, in e halls and in the cafeteria. School spirit was truly shown by all of the art udents. The basic course that made it possible for most any student to really asp the idea of art was Art Appreciation. This course gave the students a sic background and also enabled them to build architectural structures, learn sic drawing, and do a little research on some of the worlds most renowned tists.

r the student who wished to gain more knowledge about art and hopefully in college credit, the A.P. Art History course was the appropriate choice. A.P. t History included research of various art forms, artists and art time periods. e Art Honor Society accomplished many of it's goals this year, and Youth Art onth was a big hit. One of the greatest accomplishments was the completion the mural in the cafeteria. "It was a lot of hard work but now that it's ished I know that the students will appreciate it's value" stated Mrs. Kandy oss the advisor of the club. The Art Honor Society also made it a point to read the knowledge and beauty of art throughout the school the entire year.

Working on a sketch, Chrissy Machaj concentrates on perfecting her assignment. Drawing sketches before they printed helped the students in Art Foundations to visualize their painting before they painted it.

Performance Time

Theater

The art of performing plays and musicals and hosting an all day fair in May encouraged e theatre students to reach for the stars. Under the direction of Mrs. Nancy Curtis, the eatre department strove to involve students from every discipline in the school. e International Thespian Troupe 3176, was the parent organization for the Patriot Players, e Dramatic Artisans, and Theatre-2-Go with the overall organization being under the nbrella,"First Colonial Theatre Ensemble." Annually, The Patriot Playhouse featured four ain stage and several showcase productions. On stage the members produced "All My ns", "South Pacific", "Tame This!", and "I'll Be Home for the Holidays," which was featured the USO-Style Show. If not on stage, the members could be found putting forth their st effort behind the scenes changing lights, staging, sounds, etc. No matter the assigned sk in a production, the outcome was always put together with the determination and irit contributed with a team effort. "There is something special in the troop that cannot explained, only experienced," exclaimed Kathryn Blackburn. Experiencing with other heatre" people all over, the ensemble traveled to a Thespian Conference at Longwood llege. At the gathering, the members received the enrichment to produce and function w ideas into their own theatre productions. The Theatre Ensemble left a remarkable otprint with their strong participation, time, and enjoyment put into every masterpiece tempted.

At the sound board Jonathan Kim, Rob Seely, and Kierston Armstrong test the vocals for the stage. Sound technicians were responsible for proper production of music and sound effects as well as balancing the sound production of the microphones.

Watching a squad practice marching, C/LCDR Robert Hamm and C/LT Andrew Marenholz discuss areas of improvement. Robert and Andrew frequently evaluated the marching precision of their squad.

ilding future leaders whether for military service or civilian life was the main objective of the Naval nior Reserve Officer Training Corps. The motto of the corps, which was constantly emphasized roughout the year, was to "Look, learn and follow". Other objectives for the corps was to instill e values of citizenship, service to the country, personal responsibility, and to develop a sense of complishment in each cadet. This unit, in its twentieth-eighth year, grew in size and quality of udents over the years. Being the recipient of the NJROTC CNET Award three years in a row was a gnificant accomplishment which meant that they fell into the top 10% of NJROTC units in the ition.

mmunity involvement and service to their fellow man were acquired through individual and group tivities. Cadets participated in providing the colors for various sporting events as well as PTSA eetings here and at Cox High. They were also seen throughout the year at the NAS Oceana Air ow, Neptune Festival, Veterans Day Parade, USO-Style Show at NAS Oceana in December, Shamrock arathon and American Cancer Society Relay for Life.

e drill team, color guard, athletic team and individual cadets competed at Hampton University, loucester, the Winter Invitational Meet, and the Cavalier Drill Meets during the year. Their dedica-on to striving for excellence proved sucessful as they were able to bring back prestigious accomplish-ents and awards. Mr. Mebane commented, " Mr. Zurschmidt and I are very proud of each cadet. ey have demonstrated responsibility and developed their maturity to a high level".

NJROTC Color Guard

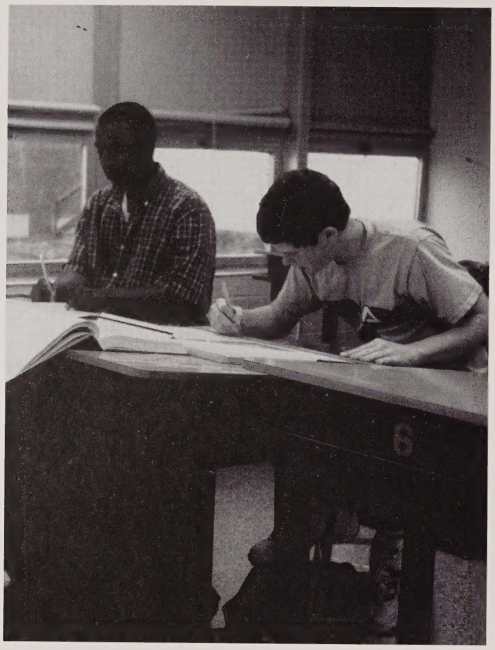
eparing for the Neptune Parade, Cadets Anthony Sisco, Stephanie Baker, Miranda Ruiz, shua Burton and Nicole Barter, await to march proudly at the beach. The strong adership which was developed continued to show throughin numerous events.

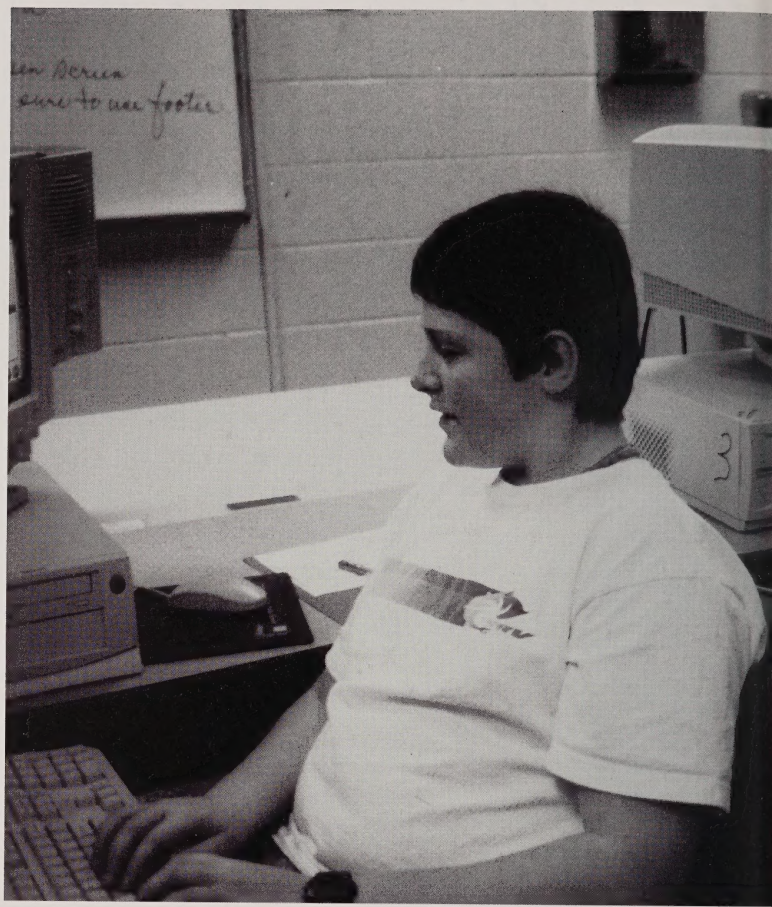
Varsity Drill Team

Commanded by cadet Groothousen, the Varsity Drill team listens intentively to their next orders given. Daily practing was definelty noticeable when Maxine Brown, Steve Hyleberg and Kimichia Mallison displayed their skills.

Using his extende knowledge of keyboarding and computers, Scott Corillo designs a new program. Computer programming was one of several courses offered to students.

Taking their time to ensure perfect designs, Simon Ntezinde and Sean Pullman create the floorplans to their dream homes. Students used technical and drawing skills in architectural drawing classes to develop their ideas.





Drying her negatives, Jessica Barrows prepares to cut the negatives for filing purposes. Photography was a popular choice for those students needing a practical arts credit.

Building a shed in Mr. West's class, Jon de Mayo and Jake Barbini nail a trellis the roof. Along with the rest of the manufacturing technology class, Jon and Ja spent several class hours completing the storage shed.

The Wave of the Future

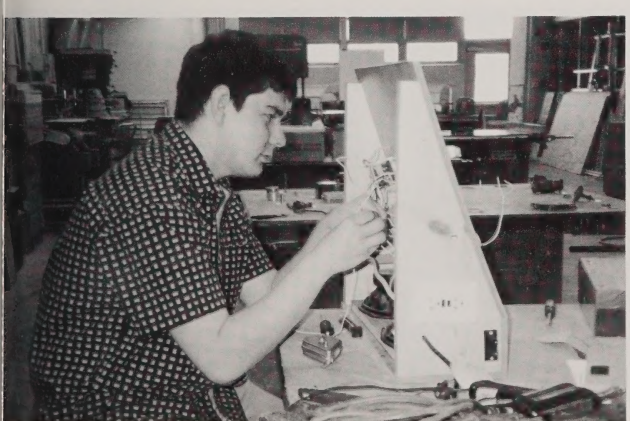
Technology

ce the late 1980's, the wave of the future has been technology. The technological advances of just e past ten years have been fast and and incredible. The miniaturzation of micro chips have made mputers operate at a very fast pace. Courses offered were to help students prepare themselves for s in the global environment. Introduction to Engineering; Photography and Printing; Technical awing, and Construction Drawing. These courses enabled students to learn the basics and fundamen- s of each field with application through hands-on projects while gaining confidence with the result the finished product.

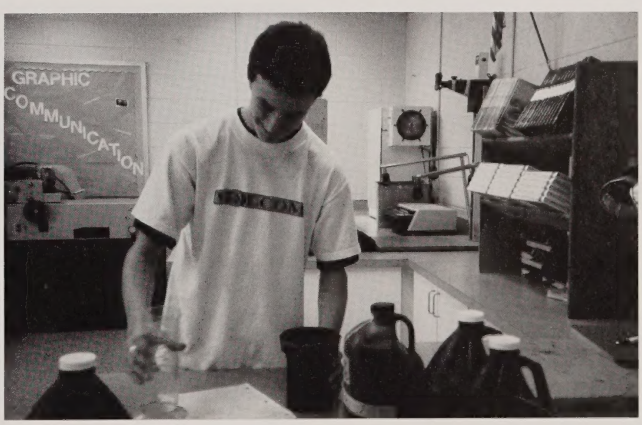
The photography and printing class taught students how to correctly take and develop their own n. Learning to read and create blue prints was the objective of the Architectural Drawing classes. le Moore commented, "Near the end of the course we drew a floor plan and house plan for our eam home. We then constructed a scale model house of the plan and entered our plan in the lewater Builder Association contest." Students unanimously agreed that the best aspects of their sses were seeing their many projects completed. The computer courses also contributed to the idents' academic enrichment. Although most knew how to handle computers with their eyes closed, e computer classes led students through all dimensions of the computer: the backbone of our chnologically advancing society.

With all the technology courses from which to chose, students had the opportunity to increase eir knowledge in a variety of technical areas. These fields, with the help of hands-on experience, epared each student for the business world of the future as well as for the every day life of today.

Working on wiring a lamp, Matt Cornett and Mike McLachlan learn about home electrical systems. Electricity class was an option for those students who were interested in technology.



Wiring a switchboard panel, Arron Fonde learns the basics of home technology. Electrical asses provided an opportunity for students to have hands-on training and learn the asics of electricity and wiring.



Mixing chemicals for developing negatives, Taylor Smith carefully reads the directions. Students in photography learned the basics of developing negatives and exposing the pictures onto contact paper.

Displaying proper keyboarding techniques, junior Brian Trochesset finishes his classwork. Many students enjoyed the keyboarding classes where they learned the basic fundamentals of typing.

After being elected D.E.C.A. Homecoming Queen, junior Katie Miller pauses for a quick picture. The D.E.C.A. Homecoming Court was composed of Jeff Duncan and Katie, who were elected by fellow members for their contributions to the club.

Business
Future Skills

th many different types of Business classes offered, students had an excellent opportunity to build ls for the future. The classes which gave students both a fun and an educational way to learn re: Keyboarding, Keyboarding Applications, Computer Programing, and Marketing. Many students ed for the popular Keyboarding in which they learned basic keying techniques in order to fulfill ir manadatory practical art credit. Afte taking this course, many students decided to take yboarding Applications and Computer Information Systems. Some upperclassmen however, chose the year long double credit Marketing Co-op course which earned them credits while working at after ool jobs. This was a great chance for students to get a feel for the business world. Mike milton commented, "I liked participating in a program like this where I could get credits for the er school job that I worked."

For those students that were seriously interested in Business careers, two clubs, DECA and FBLA, ped them work towards their business goals. DECA, having 76 members, was a co-curricular club marketing students which developed social intelligence and leadership development. The club also ok part in fund-raisers and community service such as Bears for Kids, in which the club collected 4 teddy bears for Social Services to distribute to area foster children.

The FBLA, Future Business Leaders of America, was an organization which tried to develop mpetitive business leadership while strengthening students' work ethics. The twelve members of this ub helped the community with service projects such as the Angel Tree and Project Ask. They perienced business related skills which could be useed in future careers.

No matter what their business goals were, students found the high number or business classes to both informative and fun.

Marketing students Becky Halzack, Shammava Conner, and Carrie Kramer finish a class assignment while displaying their promotional balloons. Students carried balloons around school to advertise for their class and to earn extra credit.

Human Services

The practical skills of life were learned by students who elected to take one of following courses: Introduction to Food Occupations; Hospitality and Catering vices; Child Development and Parenting; Resource Management; Introduction to ild Care; Introduction to Fashion Design; or one of the various Merchandising cupations. These classes helped students achieve a better understanding of at the essentials were to live in our society.

linary Arts and Catering Services were also courses that taught students the ndamental job related skills such as basic and advanced cooking and the proper thod of serving. These courses allowed the students to compete in various inary shows and produce their own selling tactics by making cookies, cakes and zas which they sold to students in school. The catering classes also specialized organizing and conducting receptions and banquets for clubs, the PTSA or cial faculty events.

ture Homemakers of America was the club that focused mainly on skills of ry day life which helped students take charge of their personal life. The FHA mbers worked with the community via volunteering at nursing homes and at Childrens' Hospital for the Kings Daughters.

Lining up her material with the needle, Paula Biggins sews a pattern onto the fabric. Independent Living class also offered sessions in proper etiquette and table service.

Say What? Foreign Language

Most students would have loved to travel, see exciting foreign lands, speak a second langauge and te food related to that land. However, traveling was expensive. A free and easy way to travel to tant countries was offered through the Foreign Language program. Among the most popular guages that students took were Spanish and French. By taking these classes, the students were en an opprotunity to join a related club or apply for the respective honor society.

The main goal of the Spanish Club and Honor Society was to give back to the community through ned food drives and other projects to help the needy. A specific project that the organization was olved with this year was adopting a needy family. They used their funds to provide gifts and food the family wherein they made a personal delivery to the family. Jamie Collins, President of the nish Honor Society, commented, " I wanted to become a member of this club because I enjoy aking Spanish, and I wanted to become involved with it on another level.

The French Honor Society strove for excellence in the classroom, while participating in activites side of school time as well. Among the society's favorite service projects were entertaining dents of Camelot nursing home with French Christmas songs and organizing a reception for foreign hange students. When asked what she loved about the Honor Society Megan Christenson said, "I ited to be a part of an organization that continued French activities outside the classroom."

Working on their door decorations, students write down facts about Russia. The door decoration contest, held in honor of Foreign Language Week, promoted student interest in a plethora of countries.

Poetry in Motion

English

Students were able to develop thinking, speaking and writing skills through the study of the glish language. Courses offered were: English as a Second Language; English; Basic English; Honors glish; A.P. English; Public Speaking; Journalism; Advanced Composition; World Literature; and Visual nguage. In these courses, students were expected to think critically and analytically about written d oral expression.

der the direction of Mrs. Mary Sue Crommelin, the Forensics and Debate team won various awards local and out-of-state competitions. For the tenth year the Forensics and Debate team won the strict and Regional tournaments and advanced to the State Tournament held in April. Sarah nelon, one of the team's key competitors commented, "Debating was so much fun! It's also the rfect team for me because I love to talk and argue." The 1999 Medalists were: Leon Coleman, ne Meredith, Amanda Whitlock, Bonnie Crocker, Sarah Amelon, Amanda Stevens, Danielle Ratte, and ris Jackolski.

e school newspaper, The Towne Crier, was published once every nine weeks. Putting together a per four times during the year meant that the staff had to work quickly, and efficiently. When the per was distributed, many students found it was the perfect solution for brightening up their day! dents could read humorous horoscopes, discover helpful hints, and find useful updates and informa- n on current events. The interest stories expressed the student's true feelings on important topics. e Literary Arts Magazine gathered poems, short stories, and artwork done by the students for the dents, and published at the end of the year. Anyone could submit their work and everyone emed to enjoy the personal insight and creativity from their peers.

Scoop on Society

Social Studies

Social Studies, most often associated with history, not only involved study skills, but also written nd oral communication. Everyday skills were incorporated into the lessons to help students learn bout the voting process, gain knowledge of how the government functioned, and to develop sponsible citizenship, critical thinking, and reading and writing skills. Knowledge of and involvement ith present and historical issues were crucial for developing a well-rounded citizen. Teachers in this scipline were excellent orators as well as being able to show the connection from past events to resent. Mr. Doug Thompson's outlook on trial and error was so optimistically stated, "There is no ch thing as failure; only experience."

udents could select from a variety of courses. Some were required while others were electives for udents who wished to further their interest in this area. Courses offered were: World Geography; Vorld History; Va. and U.S. History; Va. and U.S. Government and Psychology; A.P. courses were: U.S. istory, U.S. Government & Politics, European History or Psychology; International relations; Sociology. Vithin the content of these courses, students were taught to rationally think through the issues that arious societies encountered. They were also required to constructively analyze the issues of a emocratic society and then formulate appropriate solutions. "You can't properly know how to make e best decision in the present without having knowledge about the past", remarked Lauren Reagan hen asked her opinion on why she thought the study of government and societies was important. nese essential skills were made available to students in order to become effective citizens in a emocratic society and interdependent world.

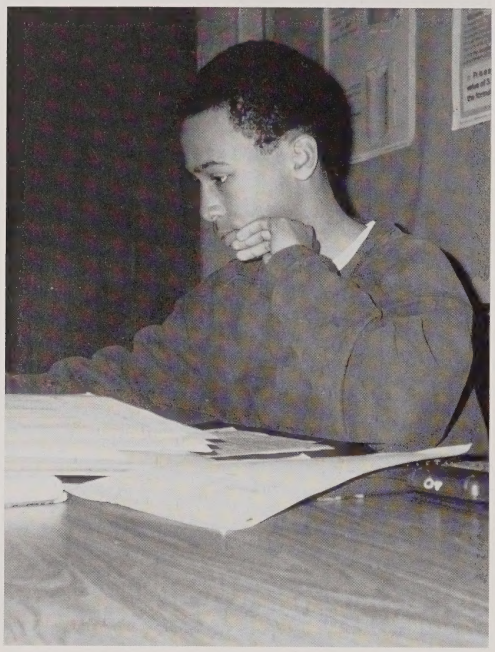
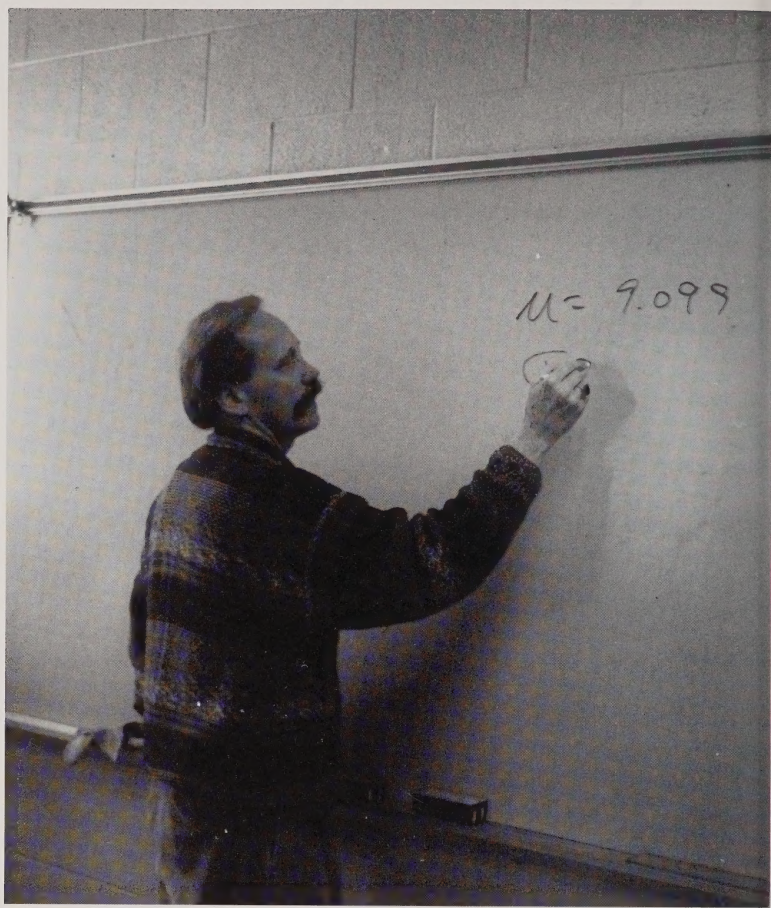
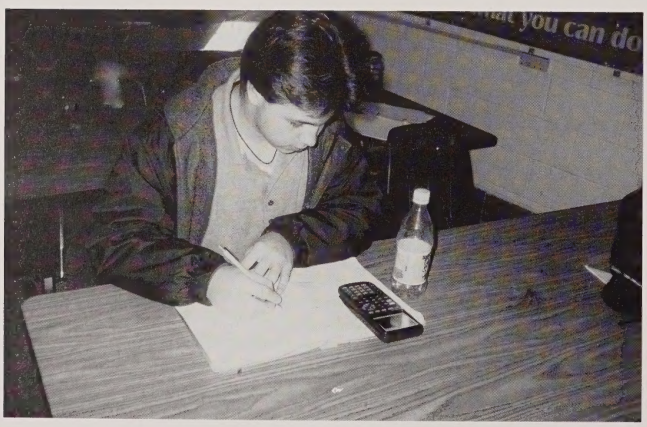
Intensely concentrating, Chris Coral attempts to complete a difficult assignment. Mrs. Arnold's classes usually had handouts for in class work to provide the foundation of each lesson studied.







Completing a test, Adam Simmons utilizes a TI-83 calculator. Geometry students used calculators to diagram certain shapes and figures to help visualize the images.

Working on the computer, Jessica Lapierre, Crystal Piland, and Jessica Baraff test t math skills. Programs on computers came in handy when working through many m problems.

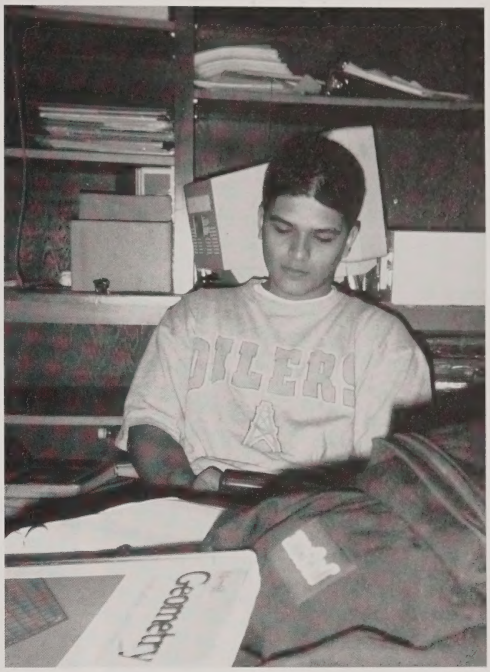
Summing It Up

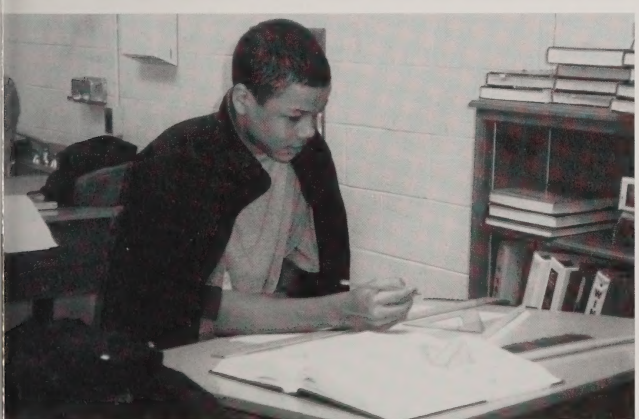
Mathematics

Mathematics was one subject that almost all students could not avoid. Many math courses required the knowledge of essential math as well as having taken a prerequisite math course. Throughout the year many students realized that most math classes were just expandtion of other math classes. From memorizing theorems and postulates, up through plugging numbers into equations, many students agreed that math was much more simple when problems looked like " 2 + 3 = 5." Although math was often compared to as much fun as watching paint dry, many teachers got around boring material by telling jokes and allowing students to work in groups. Many teachers had their students show off their math knowledge by allowing students to participate in the Human Graph Competition. In addition to the Human Graph Competition, Mr. Runzo showed his love for math by teaching his students that " Math is the spice of life."

A variety of courses that were offered included: Algebra 1, Geometry, Algebra 2, all the way up through many college level classes. The wide range of classes allowed students of different strengths to progress in different paced courses. Overall, the courses offered provided a strong base for any student destined to work in the field of mathematics.

Programming his calculator, Wais Sawart successfully masters a difficult entry. By keeping their calculators up to date, students got a head start on mathematical fundamentals.





Utilizing his geometry skills in the drafting lab, Antione Terry diligently completes his work. Students discovered they could apply learned math skills in other classes.

Copying from the overhead, Beth Otto highlights and emphasizes her notes. Many math classes required lots of note taking from various resources such as lectures and dry erase boards in addition to the trusty overhead.

Working diligently on their Tides Lab, Christian Harrison and Partick Henry use their time wisely in class. Mr. Bothel's Oceanography class spent this time plotting the high and low tides of Sewell's Point.

Demonstrating how to conduct an experiment, Dr. Larry Weinstein shows senior Ashley Palmiero how to handle the equipment properly. Various physics classes enjoyed Dr. Weinstein's experiments throughout the day.

Experimentally Savvy Science

Experiments were conducted throughout all the various science classes offered to the students. ese challenging classes, Earth Science, Biology, Chemistry, Oceanography, Physics, and Environmen- l Science, as well as AP offered an array of information to expand ones' interest in the field. rth Science focused on the study of life on earth and how it related to everyday life. In Biology, e students concentrated on the study of life and how to apply those concepts to working in lab oups. Chemistry, a math dependent science course, based on the essential formula writing ocess, chemical changes, and the "Steeler Grids." This course required and developed problem lving skills and the application of math skills to almost all concepts. Advanced Placement Biology as concerned with the concepts of living organisms. This class also spent a three day field trip to lse Cape State Park to experience the interaction of the wilderness.

e Aware Club sponsored by Ms. Keener worked to make the community and school aware of imal rights and the violence to which these animals were subjected. The Chemistry Honor Society couraged students to be interested in science by doing demonstrations and visiting middle hools. Lindsay Ritter commented, " I enjoyed doing demonstrations for the kids because they ally seemed to have a good time and it was a lot of fun for me as well."

A.P Environmental Science was a pilot course this year taught by Mrs. Mannarino. They focused n illustrating the importance of environmental actions on our ecosystems.

Within the science department, there was something for everyone. In each of the plethora of asses, students were able to expand their scientific knowledge.

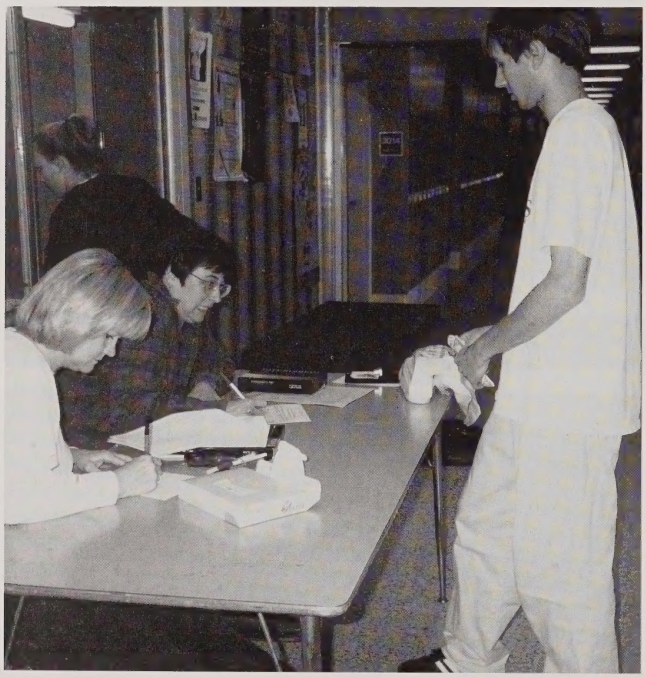
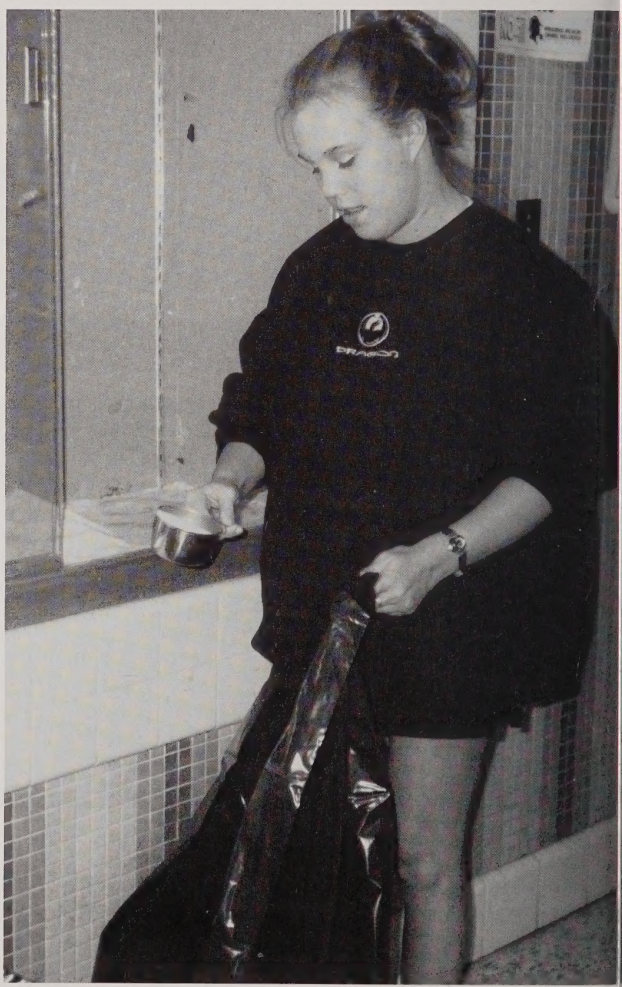
Discussing the ad contract with Mr. Frazier, Becky Baines, Michelle Chung, and Laurie Phillips determine the pricing of a full page ad. The SCA, along with many local businesses, supported the Heritage by purchasing ads that were used to defray yearbook costs.



Buying his prom tickets, Brian Tickell gives parent volunteers Mrs. Camp and Mrs. Harris his money. Volunteers were greatly appreciated throughout the school year for selling dance tickets, concessions, and other items.



Clearing out the cafeteria showcase, Mary Thayer scoops sand out of the fash marketing display. Club members often used free bells to take care of houseclear duties like making new club related displays or theme boards.

Time is Wasting

"Time, why you punish me?
Like a wave bashing into the shore
You wash away my dreams.
Time, why you walk away?
Like a friend with somewhere to go
You left my crying.
Time is wasting
Time is walking
I think I'm out of my mind
Thinking about time.
'Cause tomorrow's just another day
And I don't believe in time."

Time

Hootie and the Blowfish

Local businesses supported the Heritage by purchasing ad space in the yearbook. Once an advertisement was sold, the Business Manager and Editors set to work creating ad layouts and preparing artwork for the pages' long journey to the Jostens' Publication Plant in Topeka, Kansas. Without the patronage of the community's businesses, the production of the Heritage would have been impossible.

"As an educator, I view the purchase of a reord of hard work, friendships, laughter and tears to be a wise investment. The yearbook is a wonderful storehouse of memories!"

Colophon

The 1998-1999 edition of the HERITAGE contained 220 pages and was published by Jostens Printing and Publishing, Topeka Plant, Topeka, Kansas. The representative was Mr. Kelly Morgan. Lifetouch/Prestige took all club, faculty, sports, senior portraits, and underclassmen headshots.

Fonts used in this book were as follows: Gill Sans Condensed was used for all body copy, captions and folio tabs. The title page and dividers used Park Avenue for the headlines, and Gill Sans BoldExtraCondensed. In the senior section, Palatino was used for the senior quotations and Park Avenue for the student names. The Superlative names were in GillSans Condensed, and the actual senior superlatives were in Park Avenue. The senior messages used Americana. The index contained GillSans Condensed for the names and Park Avenue for the titles.

Color was used in the opening, student life, and senior sections.

Tool lines, gray screens, and patterned screens were used in all sections. Artwork for the folio tabs helped carry the theme throughout the book.

compliments of the Heritage 1999 Staff

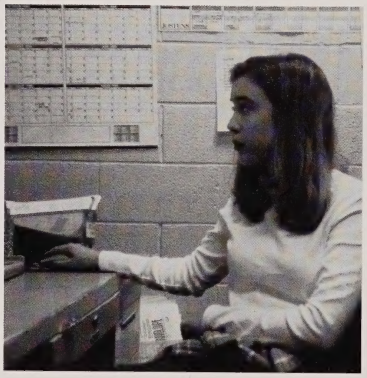
Creating the book's front endsheet, Farrell Scifres searches through the clip art for the perfect image that will help introduce and carry the theme in the book. Minute details of the book, like endsheet, required extra thought and attention from the editors.



Time After Time

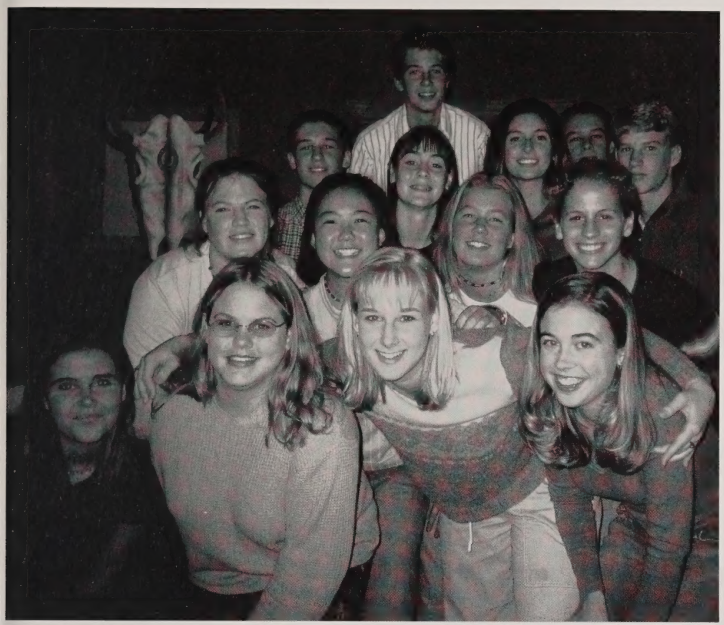
1998-1999 Heritage Staff:

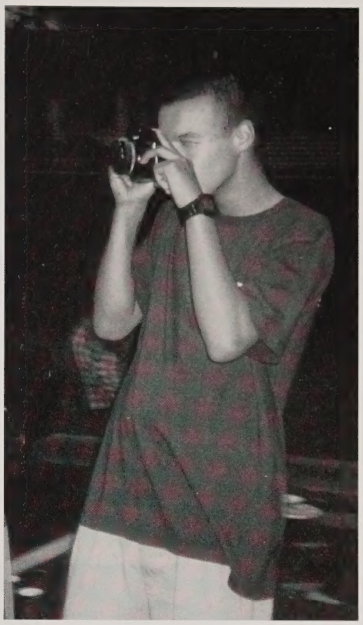
Well, we made it. Although we were not able to meet with you all during yearbook this year, we still managed to produce a great book. We would like to express our appreciation for your diligent work. Through your independence, we are confident that you have the skills to run the staff next year (good luck, Missy and Monique). To our dearest Sarah and Susanna, we couldn't have done it without you (even though Sarah lost a few choice ad pictures). Your performance as "pseudo editors" during fourth bell was imperative in managing the staff. Mrs. Bone, we still remember you staying after school with us teaching us how to save on disks. Thanks for picking up the loose ends, the mints, all the good times at Bridgewater, and being our second mom. We love you, "do what?" Thanks again, everyone.
Your Favorite Yearbook Queens,

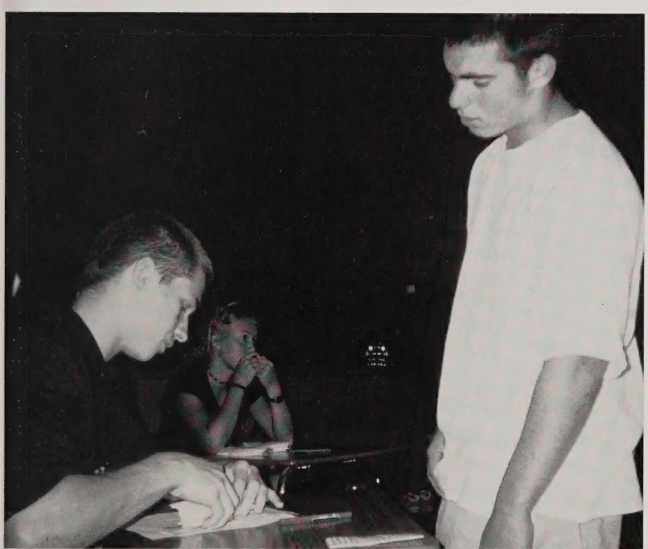
Farrell and Lauren

Smiling for the camera, the Heritage Staff groups together leaving their meal for a quick time out from their dinner at Ensenada. Frequent staff dinners provided staff members with a chance to relax, socialize with each other, and get away from the plethora of daily work that awaited them in room 111.

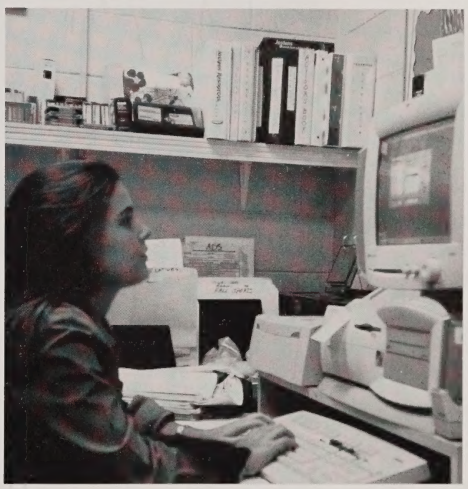


Adjusting his camera to get the perfect shot, Harrison Poole takes photos for the student life section of the book. Harrison's success as a first year photographer was evident in the many pictures he took.





Assisting with the organization of students for underclass picture day, Matt MacDonald distributes name cards. Members of the yearbook staff were responsible for much more than preparing spreads, they were an integral part of underclass photos, ads sales, and book distribution.



Enthused by the intricacies of Josten's Last Name First Program, Lauren Polino indexes the Senior section of the yearbook. A tedious but necessary task, the indexing of the Heritage necessitated countless hours of work from the editors.

Closing Time

Closing time - time for you to go out, go out into the world.

Closing time - turn the lights up over every boy and every girl.

Closing time - you don't have to go home but you can't stay here.

Closing time - time for you to go back to the places you will be from.

Closing time - this room won't be open 'til your brothers or your sisters come.

So gather up your jackets, move it to the exits - I hope you have found a friend.

Closing time - every new beginning comes from some other beginning's end...

Hey kid-o! Whats up? Its been FUN on the BUS- with an you COOL FRESHMAN. Hatta J/J. I hope you had an AWESOME FRESHMAN year! Give me a call and we'll CHILL!!! Have an AWESOME SUMMER!!!

431-9268 ♡always, Devan

Rabbie → ¡hola chico! You are the coolest and only pornstar I have ever met. How's the movie going, by the way? ☺ J/J It was fun looking at Abercrombie & Fitch books and making you rate girls... even though you wouldn't rate anyone in front of their face! What's ↑ w/ that? By the way, when are you gonna mow the grass? my yard looks like a damn jungle! Is there any possibility that you can surgically Remove your nose-because its cute and I want it. Next year you really need to attend some of the games... too bad Annie won't be cheering. Do not forget about the snowball dance next year. You better not sell-out. Or I'll come after you with my diesel muscles. And I'm not joking ☺ Call me over the summer so we can go to the beach & I can record your movie!

♡always,
Shelley Swain

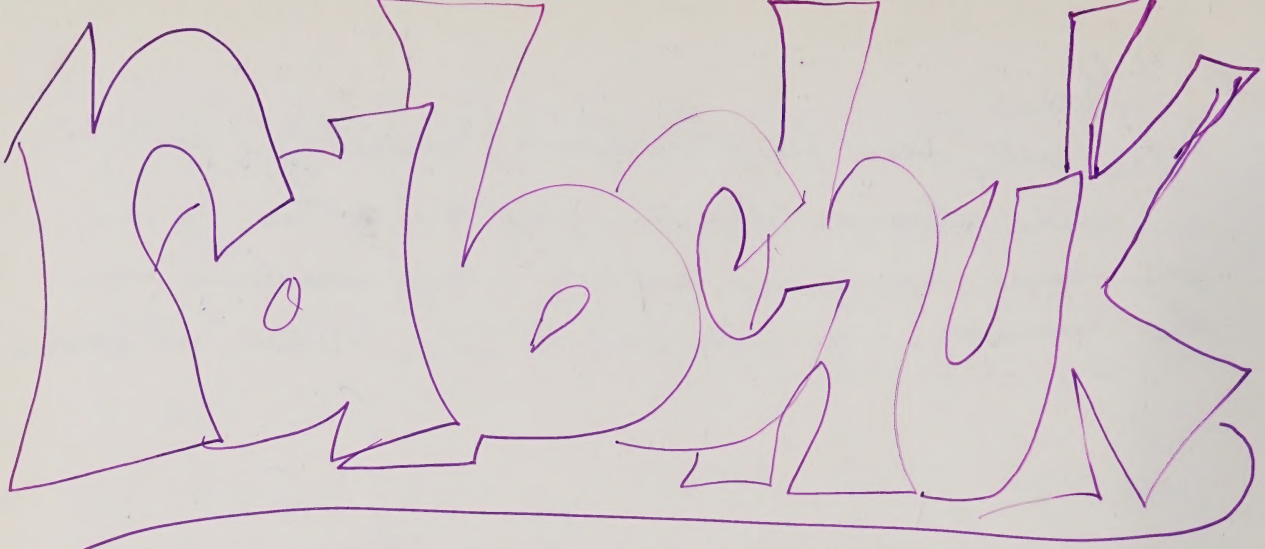
Hey. this year's been pretty fun. even though english isn't exactly my favorite subject. You know, if it wasn't for me, you wouldn't even have passed. I gave you like half the work we did in that class for God's sake! * Have fun this summer. I know, I'll see you. Maybe you guys can swim in my pool (when it's back to its normal color.) Sorry it's sloppy, ♡, Kathleen



Hey you sexy piece of meat (or something like that). You know, you really should start those projects before the day they're due. Mrs. Bond's class was oh SO FUN. Have an Awesome summer & give me a call if you get the chance. 425-8560

Brian

Its been one fer mother fuckin year in Bio. We fuckin kicked some ass in basket ball today in P.E. NO ONE could touch me in re bounding. See ya later,

AARON

Hey Brian. Call me and let's play golf. 496-3696. You cool guy you.

Andrew

May you have many bad days of golf when you play me. You are the KEWLEST GUY ever. You rule

Shawn, K

Rabchuck-

I think Tommy is about to be boycotted again if he keeps acting so gay! I've really had fun in lunch this year! Have fun in summer school! Give me a call, we'll go to the beach or something!

gay ass fag

Rabchuck-

I hope this gay boycott thing is going to stop. Anyways, It wasn't fun having 1st bell P.E. but we did the best we could.

Tommy Lenhart

Brian-

Hey I just wanted to say that even though you annoy me and get on my nerves all the time, I would never give you up as a friend. I hope that you have an awesome summer.

Callme 4865566!!
